Waiting and Hoping To Amaze an Atheist
Healthy Body, Healthy Mind
King, Queen and Henry

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

AS THIS is written, thousands are gathered on a Long Island landing field, their eyes turned toward the northeastern sky, hoping to see the German plane Bremen.

This morning tells the story of the latest brave attempt. Men are willing to die in the attempt to conquer the ocean, and for that reason they will conquer the ocean in time. There is no power in nature stronger than the will of man.

TIME heals wounds, banishes hatred and fear. We now await eagerly the coming of a German airplane. Suppose that plane had started in this direction DURING THE WAR.

CHARLES L. SMITH, an atheist who would not keep quiet about it, is accused of annoying the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, Baptist. The trial begins next Monday.

How amazed would be the atheist, how edified the spectators, if, imitating an ancient prophet, the Rev. Dr. Straton, before judge and jury, should build a bonfire, drench it with water, and call down from the clouds fire to start it going. Atheist Smith would feel small, and take it back, after that.

A YOUNG boy, his spine straightened in a hospital, seems to have had his mind "straightened" at the same time. Before the operation he delighted in pulling wings off flies, and other cruelties. That is ended.

A HEALTHY brain demands a healthy body. The greatest musician cannot produce harmony with a violin or piano out of tune. Millions are living that might be made better men and women if trephining could remove pressure from the top of the brain. Lack of reverence might thus be eliminated.

INTERESTING gathering at Cliveden, the house of Lady Astor, who frequently stirs up the British House of Commons.

King George and Queen Mary were there, so was Henry Ford, and they talked for two hours. King and Queen know more about automobiles now than they ever thought anybody could know.

Britons would like to know what the King and Queen of England and the automobile king from Detroit talked about. Ford will tell them when he gets ready.

ONE THOUSAND letters, sent to 1,000 clergymen, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, signed by prominent Protestants, beg the 1,000 to preach sermons and pray for a treaty "outlawing war."

Why not insert in each prayer a paragraph asking the Almighty to bestow on the government of the United States brains enough to prepare for war, in case it should come?

THOSE clergymen praying for peace should implore success for a new capitalistic combination uniting England and the United States under the leadership of Sir Alfred Mond, one of Britain's greatest industrialists.

Organized money has a good deal to say about war, and when organized money establishes international partnerships it wants peace, to boom business.

SIR JOSEPH DUVEEN, international art dealer, pays $3,600,000 for the Central Presbyterian Church, Fifty-seventh street, corner of Madison avenue, New York. He got a bargain. Expensive merchandise will be sold in Fifty-seventh street in years to come more than anywhere else on earth. This writer told friends that long ago, but few listened.

BRITAIN proposes that women shall vote as men do, at 21 years of age. An organization of dull-minded Britishers, proposes a "50-50 League" to make women share men's perils. Unless women are drafted in war, say these dullhead gentlemen, women should not vote.

HOW would the dull-headed feel if men in order to vote had to relinquish their immunity from child bearing.

Women produce the human race, and if the production of children depended on men, with the suffering that goes with it at present, there wouldn't BE ANY CHILDREN.

THE fiery Raditch, leader of Croatian peasants, says Mussolini is preparing for war, to take Dalmatia from Jugo-Slavia. Raditch calls on five nations to stop Mussolini. It would take more nations than that.

MUSSOLINI knows that Dalmatia belonged to Italy centuries before Jugo-Slavia was [illegible] Old Romans built walls, roads and cities on that eastern side of the Adriatic. Mussolini feels about it as the French felt about Alsace and Lorraine, and with better reasons.

STAY FOR HOURS

Blase Broadway trooped to Mitchel Field, L. I., and vainly waited as army observers scanned the skies for the first glimpse of the expected German Junker, the Bremen, carrying Col. Fitzmaurice, Baron von Huenefeld, its backer and Capt. Koehl, pilot, who landed on the small island, Greenely, Labrador, hours late and 400 miles north of their course. The top picture here shows the actual hop-off of the Bremen, cabled to this country after the ship left Baldonnel aerodrome, Dublin. Here also are shown a general field of Mitchel Field, the goal, and a "false alarm," the landing of a similar Junker. The lowest photo is one of the welcome committees that waited at the field. These are Capt. Bender, Lindsay Crawford, Free State representative in New York; Grover Whalen, head of Mayor's welcome committee; Gen. Consul Hauser and Victor Ritter.

JACKSONVILLE PACT ADMITTED CONTRACT

Admission of the Jacksonville wage scale agreement in evidence in the picketing injunction proceedings being heard before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court is regarded by the United Mine Workers of America as a decisive victory for the cause of union labor. The suit was filed against the miners by the McClane Mining Company, operating mines at Treveskyn, Pa., and a member of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association.

The case has attracted national attention also on account of the reference in the testimony to the letter by President Calvin Coolidge in which he stressed the importance of both parties to wage agreements observing the integrity of their contracts.

Attorneys for the coal company raised constant objection to the admission of the Jacksonville agreement as evidence, contending that the plaintiff company had not broken its contract. In the face of this, Oliver K. Eaton, counsel for the miners, declared the officers of the company had admitted they were members of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association, one of WASHINGTON, April 14.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon has revealed to confidants that he will retire from public life at the end of his present cabinet term next March—irrespective of anything that may happen politically in November. He is tired and wants a rest.

Mellon has confided to close friends his desire to get away from the actual conduct of public affairs. Reports have persisted that he would not accept the Treasury post should the Republicans remain in power, but authoritative information concerning his attitude heretofore has been guarded closely.

There is no probability, however, that Mellon will fade out of the foreground in the Republican political picture. Only a few weeks ago he said that foremost in his mind was the Republican national convention at Kansas City.

"What are your plans for the summer?" Mellon was asked.

"The Kansas City convention—after that I have no definite plans," Mellon replied.

In the face of almost constant sniping by political enemies on Capitol Hill and of constant bombardment from radical prohibitionists, Mellon—serene, smiling—has withstood all attacks with rarely a show of irritation. A little man behind a big desk, courteous, patient, unruffled by criticism.

AIRMEN TO CONTINUE FLIGHT TODAY FROM ISLAND

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14.—(By Canadian Press.)—The German plane Bremen will continue its flight today at noon, according to a message to the Dominion government from its telegraph service at Quebec City.

It is presumed by government officials here that the Bremen will be supplied with gasoline from the wireless station at Point Amour. There is a considerable supply of gasoline kept on hand there for the operation of the generator for the wireless.

The message said:

"Airplane is expected to be repaired at noon and continue flight."

It is believed their destination will bee New York, where they planned to finish their original flight.

SAFE ON ISLAND

Any jinx there may have been in the quest of fame at the risk of death on Friday the thirteenth was offset by a four-leafed clover, a shamrock, carried in the plane.

After fighting storm, headwinds and fog in its flight from Dublin the plane came down some 1,077 miles short of its destination, Mitchel Field, and far off its course, at noon yesterday. It had covered some 2,125 miles in 34 hours and 32 minutes, airline, and presumably much more when deviations from course are considered.

LAND ON ICE

The propeller was broken and the landing gear damaged. It was assumed that this occurred when the plane landed. It was regarded as impossible for the plane to have landed on the island itself, which is a little more than a square mile in area and it was assumed that the landing was made on the ice.

As soon as word was received from Baron Ehrenfried Gunther Von Huenefeld, flight sponsor and participant of the landing, preparations were made to bring him and his companions, Capt. Hermann Koehl, German war flier,

Air Epic Bulletins

CORK, Irish Free State, April 14.—(AP.)—A brother officer of Commandant James Fitzmaurice, co-pilot of the Bremen, today announced he had received a message from the trans-Atlantic flier saying the plane was to be flown on to New York.

The damage was slight, he said. The trip would be continued as soon as the fuel was replenished and Fitzmaurice hoped to proceed on Monday.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—When authentic word came shortly after 8 o'clock last night that the Bremen was down safely on Greenely Island, the world had been without news of the fliers for over 41 hours.

Until the radio station at Manchester, N. H., picked up the message from the Canadian government station at Louisburg, N. S., at 8:35 last night, nothing had been heard of the fliers since they were sighted over Galway, Ireland, bound for the open sea, at 2:05 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, Thursday.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 14.—(INS.)—Greenely Island, where the Bremen was forced down, is a high barren piece of rock and ice, half a mile long, some seven miles south of the Labrador coast. The island, a mere dot on the map, rises 80 feet above the sea. It is moss covered, but without other vegetation, and boasts not a single tree. It is formed something in the shape of a camel, with two large humps, and it is between these that the Bremen rests.

DUBLIN, April 14.—(INS.)—Joy reigned supreme in this city today when it was learned that Commandant James E. Fitzmaurice, chief of the Irish Free State air force, and his two German companions, had

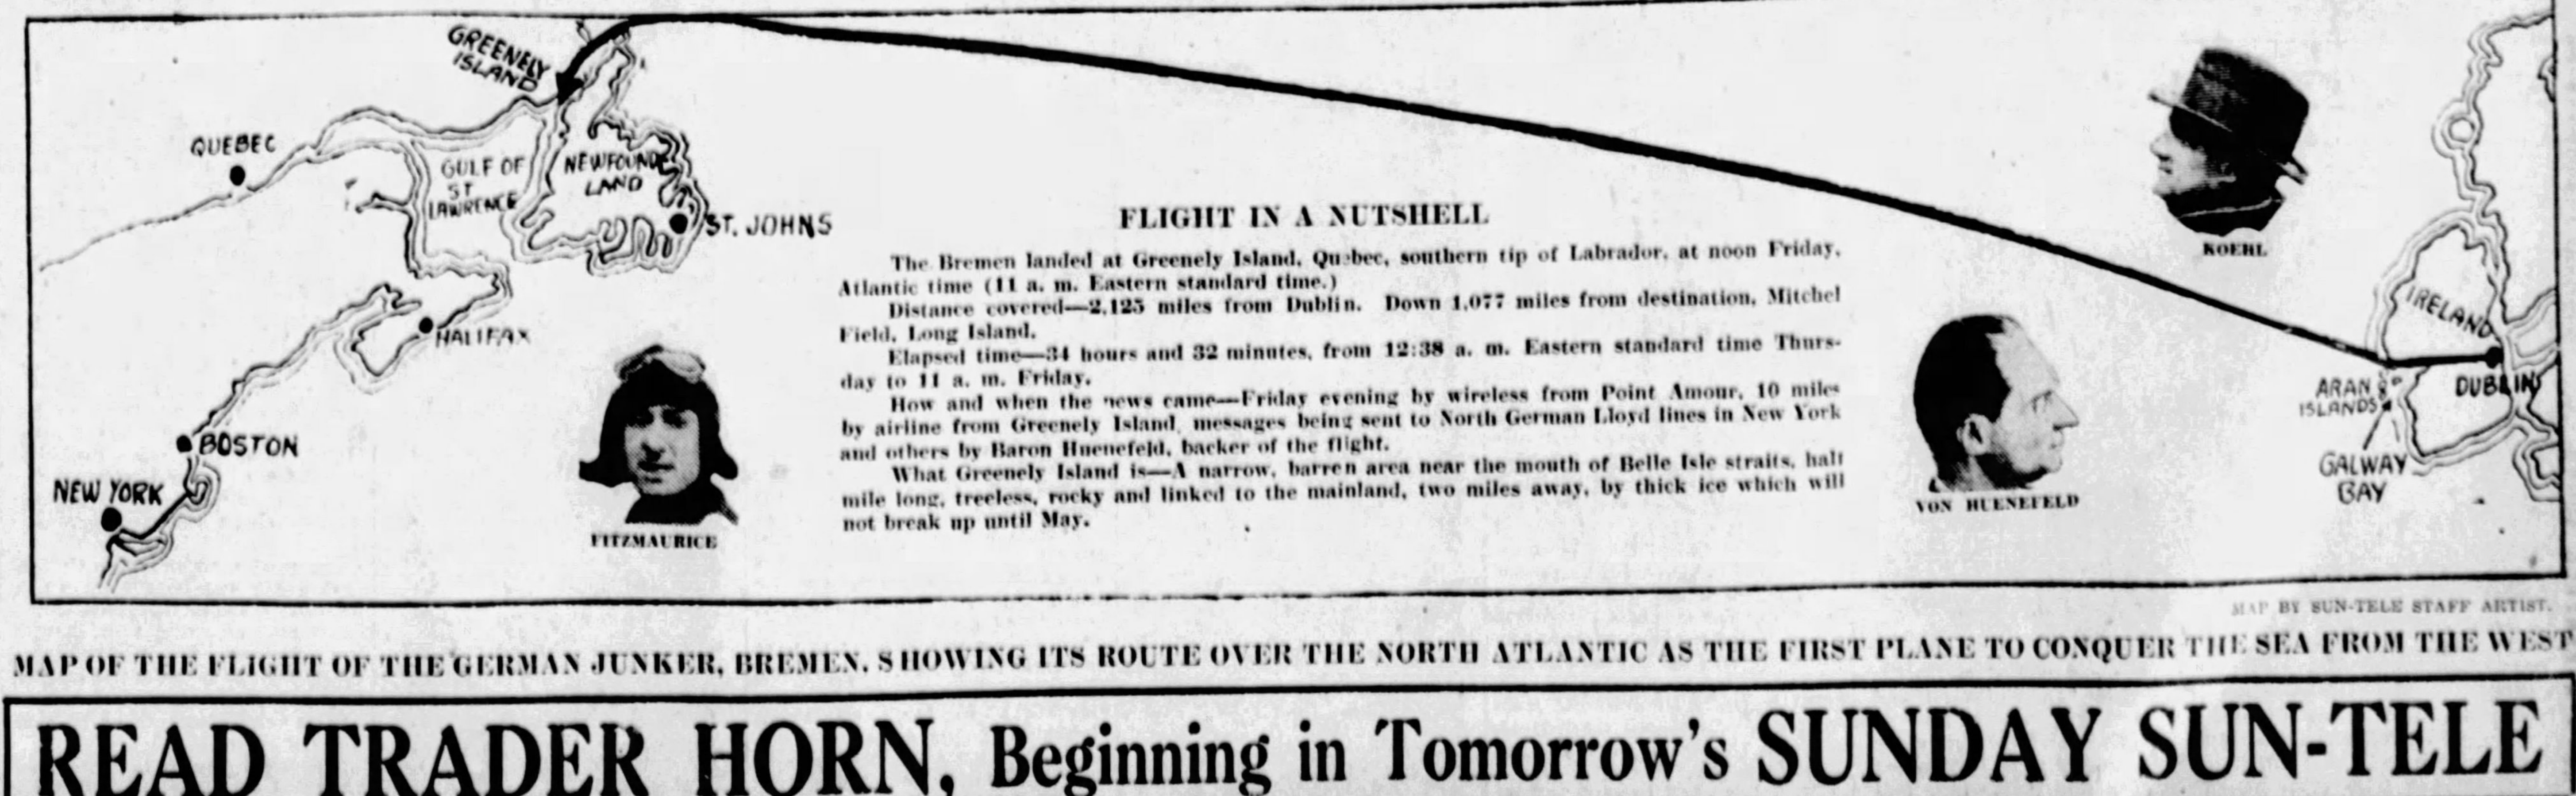
Rate Case Won by South

RICHMOND, Va., April 14.—(AP.)—An injunction restraining enforcement of the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission disallowing a reduction in rates on coal to lake ports, requested by southern railroads, was granted to coal operators today by the Federal District Court for the southern district of West Virginia.

The opinion written by Judge John J. Parker, of Charlotte, N. C., circuit judge, held that the Interstate Commerce Commission had proceeded on erroneous principles of law and had exceeded the power vested in it.

Barren Location -:- THE END OF BREMEN'S FLIGHT -:- In Labrador



FLIGHT IN A NUTSHELL

The Bremen landed at Greenely Island, Quebec, southern tip of Labrador, at noon Friday, Atlantic time (11 a. m. Eastern standard time.)

Distance covered—2,125 miles from Dublin. Down 1,077 miles from destination, Mitchel Field, Long Island.

Elapsed time—34 hours and 32 minutes, from 12:38 a. m. Eastern standard time Thursday to 11 a. m. Friday.

How and when the news came—Friday evening by wireless from Point Amour, 10 miles by airline from Greenely Island, messages being sent to North German Lloyd lines in New York and others by Baron Huenefeld, backer of the flight.

What Greenely Island is—A narrow, barren area near the mouth of Belle Isle straits, half mile long, treeless, rocky and linked to the mainland, two miles away, by thick ice which will not break up until May.

STEAMER BATTLES THROUGH ICE TO RESCUE BREMEN'S CREW

BREMEN LANDS :-: First to Fly Atlantic From East :-: FAR TO NORTH

BARON VON HUENEFELD

BACKER

Baron von Huenefeld, Bremen backer and passenger, who landed at Greenely Island, off Labrador, 1,300 miles north of New York, the destination.

D 1167 BREMEN

FIRST

The Bremen and its Irish-German crew aimed at the honor of being first to fly the Atlantic from the West. Above is shown the huge Junker, sister ship to the Europa, both of which attempted eastward Atlantic flights last summer and were forced to turn back when about 500 miles out to sea. This time the Bremen for hours was silent—it carried no radio so that its load would be lighter!—and even when it was safe it was hours before a waiting world was informed.

COL. FITZMAURICE

CO-PILOT

Col. James Fitzmaurice, commandant of Irish Free State air forces and a last-minute addition to the party when August Loose was released, is co.pilot.

PILOT

The pilot for the flight was Capt. Hermann Koehl, German war ace and famed commercial flier. Koehl also piloted the Bremen in its last year's attempt.

and Commandant James Fitzmaurice of the Irish Free State air force, co-pilots, to New York. The Junkers C-35, sister of the Bremen, prepared to fly from Mitchel Field to bring the three air heroes to New York, but this plan was abandoned.

Instead, Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the noted airplane designer, will fly to Washington to ask the United States government to send a rescue ship for the Bremen's crew. She made this announcement here this morning when unfavorable reports as to landing conditions and weather near Greenly Island were received from Canada.

The Canadian government steamer Montcalm, however, is already on her way up the St. Lawrence to take the men off.

Miss Junkers, representative in this country for her father's company, builders of the Bremen, said that if fliers familiar with the north country were unwilling to attempt the flight it would be unwise for her to try it. Dispatches from Montreal last night said all available Canadian pilots had refused to make the trip to the little ice-bound island off Labrador because of the uncertain landing conditions.

FEAR SAME FATE

The F-13 was equipped with landing wheels, the same as the Bremen, and it was feared she might suffer the same fate as the trans-Atlantic plane in making a landing on the ice or snow.

The Canadian government patrol steamer Montcalm, now in the St. Lawrence River, wirelessed that she was proceeding at once some 200 miles to the island to take the fliers off. If the ship gets through, she will take the men to North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

In two homes there was great rejoicing over the safety of the fliers.

"Thank God! Oh, thank God!" Mrs. James Fitzmaurice, who had waited anxiously at Baldonnel Airdrome, Dublin, said.

In Berlin, Mrs. Hermann Koehl's voice shook with emotion when told of the landing, saying:

"You cannot imagine what a load you have taken off my mind."

LUCKY OMENS

On the flight Baron von Huenefeld carried a four-leaf clover as an omen of good luck and Fitzmaurice a little silver doll.

The shamrock was carried by Fitzmaurice last September when he tried to fly the Atlantic with Capt. R. H. McIntosh and brought him safely back to the sands of Ballybunion Beach, when the plane was unable to fight its way through storms off the Irish coast. When the Bremen arrived at Baldonnel from Berlin on March 26, Fitzmaurice gave the Baron his cherished shamrock to carry to America. When it was decided that Fitzmaurice should share the controls with Koehl, the Baron, in return, gave the Irishman his most prized luckpiece, the doll, which is about an inch long.

News of the fliers' safety was slow in reaching the world because of the isolated spot where they landed. It traveled across the ice 10 miles by either dog sled or courier to Long Point (Lourdes De Blanc Sablon) on the mainland opposite. From there it went by land wire 12 miles to Point Amour, Labrador, where the radio station sent it to an anxious world.

FIRST MESSAGE VAGUE

The first message picked up at St. Johns, N. F., read:

"Point Amour—German plane at Greenly Island. Wind southeast, thick. (Signed) W. F. Barrett."

Barrett is the radio operator at Point Amour, on the southern tip of Labrador, where the Newfoundland government maintains a small station for the protection of fisheries.

Later Radio Station IHA, at Manchester, N. H., picked up this message from the Canadian government station at Louisburg, N. S.:

"German plane landed at Greenly Island, known. Slightly damaged. Crew well."

Then Baron Von Huenefeld sent this message to general manager H. Schuengel of the North German Lloyd line in New York:

"Made safe intermediate landing on Greenly Island, Straits Belle Isle, necessitated by lack of fuel caused by strong headwinds and fog. Inform press."

Later a second message was received from the Baron saying the propellor and landing gear were damaged and asking for fuel. From this it was assumed that the fliers were eager to carry on in their own plane to New York and also from the use of the word "intermediate" in the first message.

Mr. Schuengel, however, replied: "In view of the reported damage and on account of lack of fuel, Junkers C-38 will be sent to you to continue your voyage to New York."

MESSAGE BY FOOT

To repeated demands for more information, the radio station at Point Amour sent out this reply:

"Don't know particulars now. Only dog teams possible. About 20 miles to relay news. Have sent messages by foot."

The members of the crew will have ample food and shelter while they remain on the island, which has a winter population of 14. These persons act as keepers of a large fishing station operated during the summer months. It is well equipped with plenty of provisions.

There is small chance that there is any fuel for airplanes in the vicinity.

The region about the island is almost inaccessible at this season. The coast is icebound and there is little likelihood that it will be cleared for another month. Along the coast are scattered settlements, few with more than 100 inhabitants and communication between them is by foot or dog train.

Harrison F. Lewis of the national parks branch of the Canadian Department of Interiar said that it would not be possible for the plane to land on the island itself.

DRIFT EXPLAINED

He thought it came down on the ice beside the island and would be able to take off from the ice if it were found practicable to continue the flight.

Explanation of the fact that the plane was nearly 500 miles off her course was seen in a remark made by Commander Donald A. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, last summer. Discussing the fate of the French fliers, Nungesser and Coli, first to perish on the East to West passage, he said he believed compass variation took the French fliers northward off their course.

"Fog"—one of the words in Baron von Huenefeld's message—also offered a possible explanation of the landing far to the north.

There were world-wide congratulations on the first accomplishment of a feat which had taken the lives of five men and two women in three east-west flights in the last year.

STEAL, THEN RUN AWAY

ORPHANAGE BOYS

"Homeless boys," they said they were when picked up in St. Clairsville, O., but (left to right) Frank Oddo, 13, Italian; Oscar Schoppe, 14, German, and Charles Papuchka, 12, Servian, all formerly of Cleveland, were discovered by police to have run away from the Parmadale (O.) Orphanage when they were accused of stealing cookies from other inmates. They told police they had been kidnaped.

BREMEN'S CREW ESCAPES ATLANTIC'S "DEATH ABYSS"

BARON VON HUENEFELD

COL. FITZMAURICE

SEVEN DIE

Seven had dropped into the Atlantic Ocean's "Death Abyss" in attempts to span the sea from the east to the west. Then, Baron Ehrenfried Gunther von Huenefeld, Commandant James Fitzmaurice and Capt. Hermann Koehl laughed at death and took off. Long hours overdue, their arrival, at last reported, rejoiced a waiting world.

CEASE BY WINTER

Only through the winter did aviators cease their efforts to fly the Atlantic from the east and even then they laid endless plans. The first attempt, May 8, 1927, brought death to Nungesser and Coli, Frenchmen, never seen since their hop-off. Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Hamilton and Col. Raphael, English, passed from sight in August.

ELSIE MACKAY

PRINCESS LOWENSTEIN

ELSIE MACKAY GOES

The latest fatal attempt was that of Elsie Mackay, titled Englishwoman, and Capt. Walter Hinchliffe, her pilot, March 13. They have not been heard from since they passed over the Irish coast. Others who made false starts or abandoned their flights have attempted the hop.

FUTILE ATTEMPTS

The Bremen in company with a sister Junker, Europa, made a false start last August, turning back from the sea in strong headwinds. The Junkers D-1230, carrying Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress, cancelled its flight in the Azores. The German naval plane D-1220 was wrecked in a forced heavy sea landing at Horta.

the signatories to the agreement and thus the McClane Company was clearly party to the contract. Judge Gray at the hearing today promptly over-ruled the objections of the coal company counsel, and it is declared, that this is the first time that any court of law has admitted the Jacksonville agreement in evidence on the status of a contract.

Attorney Eaton today announced he will ask the court to dismiss injunction proceedings against the miners' union on the ground that the company brought the trouble on itself by not adhering to its agreement. "This company has come into court with unclean hands as a result of breaking the Jacksonville wage scale agreement. The company has only itself to blame."

Officers of the company on the stand admitted they had reduced wages to $4 a day soon after the signing of the Jacksonville scale and later to $3.50 a day. A strike was called and the mine has since been operated on an open shop basis. The property is picketed by the striking miners and the suit is to enjoin the pickets and drive them off.

William Collins, a deputy sheriff, the first witness today, testified that the pickets had acted in an orderly manner, that no arrests had been made and that he had never seen any cause for arrests. He said the mine guards were provided with rifles, sawed-off shotguns and tear gas bombs. This assertion had been denied by the company's witnesses on cross-examination yesterday.

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, of the United Mine Workers, testified the pickets stood on private property which had been leased by the union and megaphones were used in talking to the nonunion men. Any picket using violent language or acting in a disorderly manner, he said, would instantly be dismissed from the union. No picket, he declared, had ever trespassed on the company's property.

The hearing will be continued on Monday.

"HOME SWEET HOME"

Thirty to 40 couples were dancing when the blast came. It was the regular Friday night dance of West Plains' younger set. Among the merry-makers were many of the prominent young men and women of West Plains.

At 11:30 o'clock the dance was at its height. The three-piece orchestra was nearing "Home Sweet Home." Miss Dimples Martin, at the piano, was pounding out the strain of a popular melody—nobody remembers the name.

At that moment J. N. Weiser, owner of the building, opened the back door of the garage on the floor below. A motorist had called him from his home to supply some gasoline. As the garage door swung open there was the thunder of a terrific explosion.

The floor of the dance hall above was lifted almost to the ceiling. A moment of terrible silence followed. Then the floor crashed in fragments into a raging gasoline-fed furnace below. Into it went the forms of a score of humans who a moment before had been care-free dancers.

Some were blown through the windows and survived. Three or four were able to crawl away from the hungry flames to safety. Others were blown free of the ruins to the street below, cut and mangled, burned and bleeding.

The pianist was believed to have been killed instantly. Ball Allen, the trombone player, who was sitting next to her, was blown through a window and lives.

The blast awoke sleeping farmers for a radius of three miles, and the leaping flames guided them to the scene of the disaster.

to the Legislature from the Fourth District.

The questionnaire had been sent to all candidates for the Legislature by the association and the faked answer of Goehring had been made public in a statement issued to all the newspapers by Francis S. Guthrie, secretary of the organization.

Last night, over the telephone, Mr. Guthrie admitted that the questionnaire he believed had been answered and signed by Goehring was a forgery.

Asked how many of the questionnaire blanks had been printed by his association, he insisted that only sufficient had been struck off the press to send one to each candidate. He admitted that the questionnaires had not been sent by registered mail or special delivery, but with ordinary two-cent stamps.

"Who printed the blanks?" he was asked.

"I'd have to inspect my records to discover that," he replied.

The only way, according to Mr. Guthrie, he could account for the forgery was that some candidate who did not answer used the blank himself handed the questionnaire to someone else, who forged Goehring's name.

The matter began when Guthrie made public a statement citing four questions asked all legislative candidates and reporting that all with one exception, favored "remedial legislation," so far as better election laws are concerned.

"The notable exception," he said, was Goehring.

Goehring immediately charged "fake." After an investigation, Guthrie admitted he believed the signature a forgery.

STEAMER GOING TO FLIERS

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14.—(AP.)—The government steamer Montcalm was steaming today to Greenly Island to return the German-Irish crew of the monoplane Bremen from icebound wilds.

Diverted by government order from her patrol course, the ship early today was in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, 200 miles from the landing place of the trans-Atlantic fliers, Capt. Mercier reported he was proceeding with sufficient fuel aboard for the voyage.

Whether an airplane would be dispatched to the island was to be considered later in the day, officials said. There was a feeling in official circles that such a step would be inadvisable unless conditions were favorable, and Capt. Mercier has been asked for a full report on ice conditions in the district. Officials said that the project would be given full consideration on receipt of his report.

ICE BARS WAY

It was pointed out that the date of the Montcalm's arrival at the Bremen's landing place would depend entirely on ice conditions. A large amount of ice was reported in the gulf and it was said that conditions probably would be even more unfavorable as the Montcalm approached Greenly Island.

The question of sending aid to the crew of the Bremen was considered at a conference, that began last night and continued until early this morning, between J. L. Ralston, minister of national defense, and Alex Johnston, deputy minister of marine and fisheries.

In the event it is decided to send an airplane to the island, it was believed that a five-seated ship would be used. A plane of that type was at Shirley Bay, near Ottawa, about 600 miles from the Bremen's landing place.

WEATHER BALKS RESCUE

MONTREAL, April 14.—(AP.)—Weather conditions and lack of transportation facilities stopped every effort on the part of the Dominion government, newspapers and individuals, to get into communication with the three fliers.

Efforts to charter an airplane in Quebec or the maritime provinces of Canada to make the trip to the island were unavailing.

The Canadian Press endeavored in vain to charter a plane from every one of the aviation companies operating in Eastern Canada. In each case practically the same reply was given.

"Our machines are laid up for the present," it was declared, "on account of the impracticable landing conditions."

While an airplane may land safely on water in one section of the country, it may have to alight or take off from another district by means of either skiis or wheels. Flying, until the last few days, was carried on with ski-fitted planes, but there is no snow-covered territory in the vicinity of Belle Isle on which a machine so fitted could alight. In some cases it is even impossible to risk a takeoff from ice-covered lakes, due to the imminency of a break-up. For the same reason it is impossible to fit floats or pontoons, as there is not water area from which a seaplane could arise. The same applies to flying boats, which, at the present time, are laid up for the winter.

RELIEF DELAYED

Thus, it has been proved almost impossible to leave immediately for the scene of the Bremen's landing. Plans will likely be made to prepare a machine suitable for the work, but it must be a flying boat or seaplane to reach, with any degree of possibility, the Strait of Belle Isle. Another difficulty that must be considered is the landing condition at Greenly Island or its vicinity. Advices from the Marine Signal Service Station at Point Amour, and other government stations in the strait, state that there is heavy open ice, which, though distant from shore, is liable to change in direction with an alteration in the wind direction, and be floated to the point at which an airplane would desire to come down.

Another consideration for any pilot who should venture forth on the 878-mile flight to Point Amour is that of gas supply. There is no gasoline cache in the vicinity of Belle Isle, which is 878 miles from Montreal, though it is understood that there are supplies at Seven Islands, about 430 miles from Montreal. A plane capable of carrying enough fuel for a flight of about 800 miles at least would be required, and it is doubtful if even such a quantity is available at Seven Islands, near Clarke City.

Fogs also are liable to occur in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at this season.

EAST ST. BRIDGE TO BE BUILT

Decision to build the East Street Bridge, reached after a conference yesterday between Edward G. Lang and Norman F. Brown, respective heads of the city and county Departments of Public Works, ends a campaign of several years.

Bids on erection of the structure, which will connect Charles and Essen streets with a 500-foot span, will be advertised early in June.

The county's share, $390,000, is already covered by bonds sold. The city's share, $500,000, will be covered by bonds that will be sold soon. The city will do the work. The bridge will be co-ordinated with county highways.

TONY FORRESTER, EX-POLICE ACE, KILLED

AUTOTURNS OVER IN CRASH

Former Police Capt. Anthony (Tony) Forrester, 40, of 1632 Tustin street, met almost instant death last night when an automobile he was driving in the Washington pike, near Bridgeville, South Fayette township, overturned after colliding head-on with another machine. Esther Fulton, 19, and Anne Cheaecz, 18, both of 1702 Forbes street, occupants of the former police captain's car, had narrow escapes.

Forrester had long been one of the most conspicuous officers on the force.

State police who investigated the crash lodged the driver of the other car, Walter Hopper of Canonsburg, in the Bridgeville police station. According to a report to the coroner, Hopper had been drinking.

Passing motorists extricated Forrester from the overturned automobile and removed him to the office of Dr. Dante Pigossi of 432 Washington avenue, Bridgeville. There it was found his neck had been broken.

Forrester's career as a police officer ended last November after about 14 years' service. He was dismissed by the Police Trial Board investigating reports of his interfering with the arrests of two men who had taken part in a political battle in Soho. He was reported to have been seeking re-instatement at the time of the accident.

HOLD 5 YOUTHS IN THEFTS

BUTLER, Pa., April 14.—(AP.)—Five Cleveland boys, who were said by state highway patrolmen to have confessed to robbing the Southern Theater at Cleveland and to the theft of several automobiles, were being held here today, pending further investigation of their story. They said they took the automobiles at Cleveland, Wheeling, W. Va., and Washington, Pa.

The youths gave their names as Francis Chambers, George High, William Kincke, Arthur Bessell and Daniel Briney. High said he had relatives here.

FAYETTE MAN MISSING ON TRIP TO PITTSBURGH

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 14.—Pittsburgh police have been asked to search for Isadore Alpern, well-known resident of Republic, who has not been heard of since he left his home Sunday to go to Pittsburgh. Alpern's wife, the mother of four children, is prostrated. The man formerly worked in Wheeling, W. Va., and in Akron, O.

Anxious Moments -:- AS BREMEN KEPT SILENCE -:- Over Atlantic Wastes

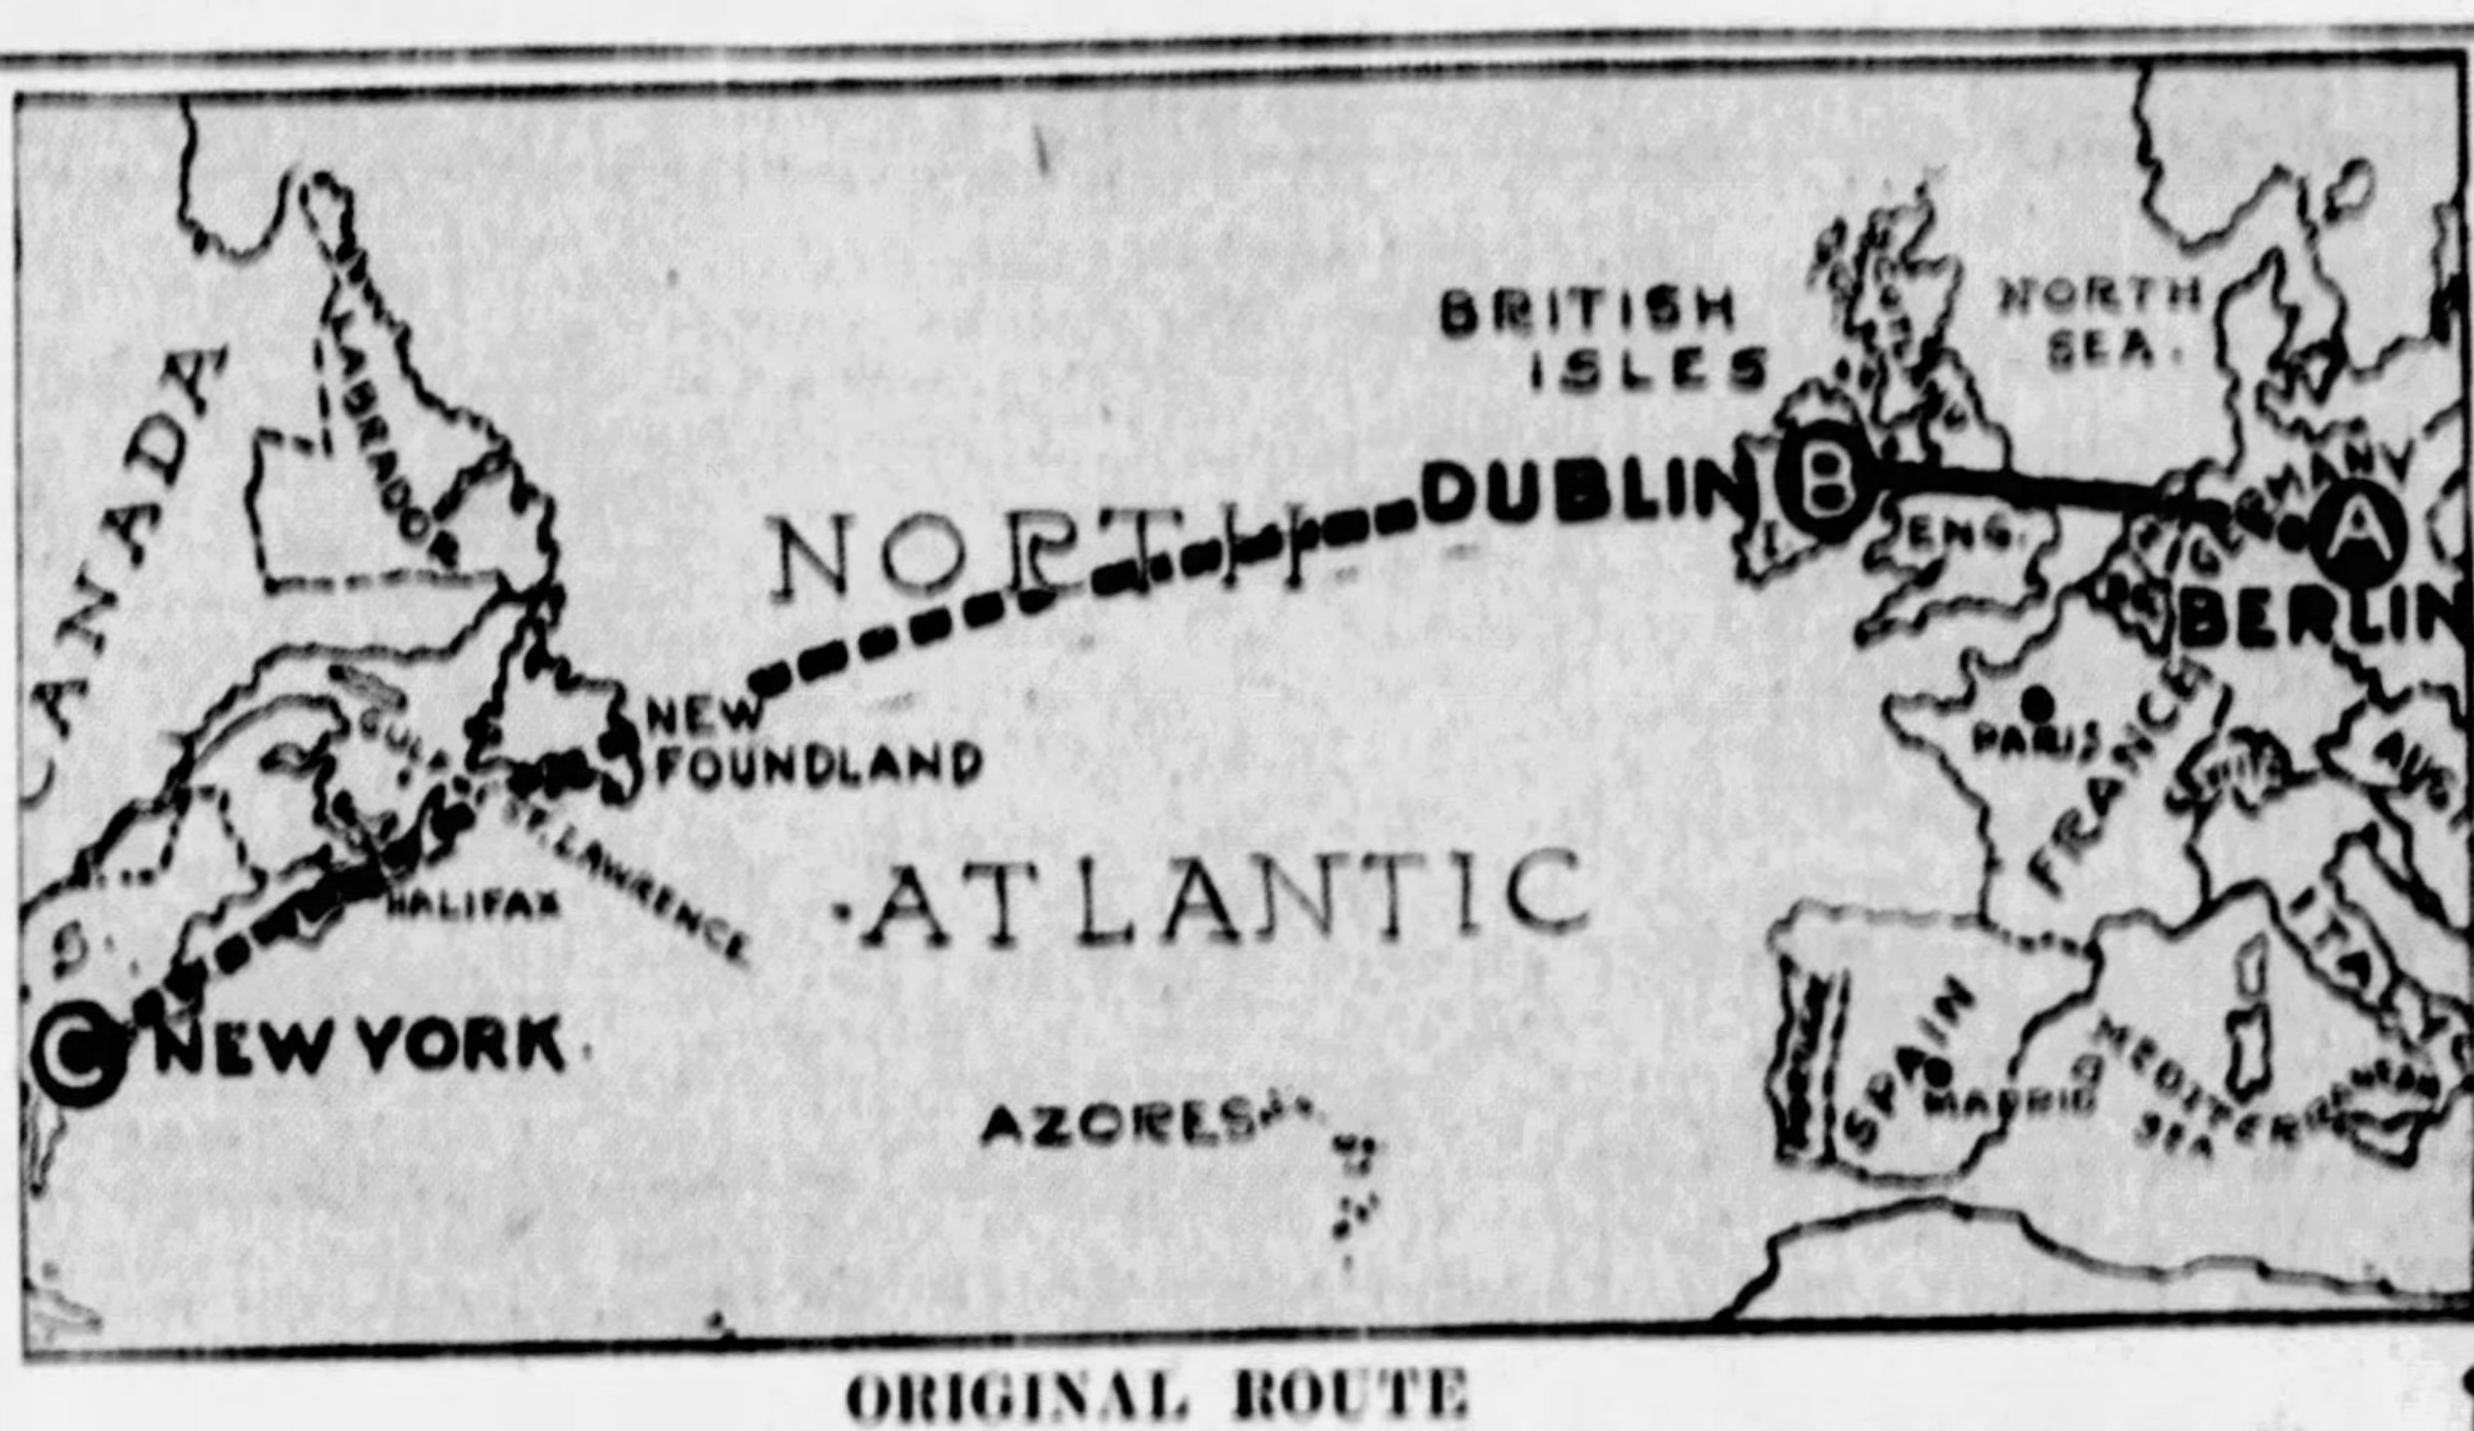
THE JUNKER 'BREMEN'

FRIENDS, RELATIVES WAIT

An anxious, waiting world scanned the horizons of the Atlantic from the east and from the west as the German Junker plane, Bremen, carrying a German-Irish crew, maintained a long silence after it hopped off from Ireland with its nose pointed for America. Its landing at Greenely Island, Labrador, relieved friends, relatives and millions of well-wishers.

PART OF CREW

This is the German complement of the crew of the Bremen, shown climbing into their cabin plane for one of the many test flights which the ship made in Ireland, where it stopped for several weeks after its original start of the trip from Berlin.



ORIGINAL ROUTE

The original route of the trip, laid out long before the start, showing the point of hop-off, Berlin, and where the plane tarried in Ireland, Dublin, for several weeks. At Dublin, the change in the crew was made, August Loose dropping out and Col. James Fitzmaurice, commandant of the Irish Free State forces, taking his place. The Bremen pilots planned to cross Nova Scotia in a wide circle, carrying them south to New York. Inclement weather and heavy winds from the south carried the ship far to the north. It landed at Greenely Island, Labrador, 400 miles above its plotted course.

ANXIOUS

For many hours the wife of Col. Fitzmaurice, shown with her little daughter, Pat, waited in Dublin for word of the flight. "Thank God, thank God," was all she could say when first informed that the Bremen had reached land on the east of the Atlantic.

landed safely in America after they had almost been given up for lost.

The Irish flier's wife was radiant with happiness after having gone through almost two days of wracking uncertainty.

"I am the happiest and proudest woman in the world," she said. "I was confident all the time that he would get there safely, but oh—that waiting.

"I haven't slept since my husband left, but I will sleep soundly and happily now. He won't do any more stunt flying now, if I can help it.

"My husband has achieved his life's ambition. He should be satisfied now."

MONTREAL, April 14.—(INS.)—The Canadian government ice-breaker Montcalm is proceeding today under forced steam for Point Amour, Labrador, to pick up the three trans-Atlantic fliers at Greenely Island, according to a radio received from the captain.

The message stated that the Montcalm was now in the gulf of the St. Lawrence, between East Point and Cape Ray. The captain stated that unless he encounters most unfavorable ice conditions he will reach Point Amour by tonight, and will have the fliers ashore in Canada by late tomorrow or early Monday morning.

BERLIN, April 14.—(INS.)—After being plunged into the depths of gloom and despair, Germany was awakened today by the joyous news that Capt. Koehl, Baron von Huenefeld and their Irish companion, had safely landed in America.

Newsboys ran through the streets with extras. Thousands of papers were avidly bought up in a few minutes. Impromptu celebrations were started everywhere.

International News Service was the first to bring the glad tidings to Germany.

The usually stoic stream of workers at dawn went to their tasks with faces wreathed in smiles.

For the first time Germany really appreciated the wonderful achievement of its two dauntless airmen and their Irish companion.

BERLIN, April 14.—Tomorrow is Capt. Hermann Koehl's birthday. He will be 40 years old. His friends here hoped he could be taken to civilization before then so that he could celebrate his birthday and his wonderful achievement at the same time in a fitting manner.

LONDON, April 14.—When informed of the safe crossing of the plane Bremen, Mrs. Walter Hinchliffe, whose husband disappeared with the Honorable Elsie Mackay on a similar attempt, told the Associated Press today:

"I am very pleased indeed that Capt. Koehl has done it. My husband always said he was a capable and experienced pilot.

"I am glad to know that such an expert has been successful rather than that the first crossing East to West should be accomplished by a stunt flier with an element of luck."

Mrs Hinchliffe said that while news of the plane's arrival was gratifying, it made the loss of her husband even more keen. She has not yet given up the hope that he and his companion may be discovered at some isolated spot.

DINES, THEN BATTLES

GRACE KELLER

Miss Grace Keller, waitress, Clairhaven street, Crafton, returned to a restaurant at 541 Penn avenue for dinner. Money stolen from another waitress, it was testified, paid for the meal and then she battled the proprietor, Daniel Lacyk, when he stopped her exit. She blamed "booze" for the theft.

NEWS OF BREMEN PICKED UP HERE

While "just listening" to what the radio waves had to say, W. E. Todd, amateur radio station operator of 623 Taylor avenue, Avalon, last night picked up one of the first messages reporting the German transoceanic fliers on this side of the Atlantic.

"Have just received a report that the plane landed at Greenly Island, near Point Amour, Labrador," was the message intercepted by Todd. The designation used by the station which sent the message indicated that it was somewhere in Eastern Canada, Mr. Todd said.

News reports received later indicated that Todd had intercepted part of the message broadcast from the Canadian government radio station at Louisburg, Nova Scotia, telling of the report that the fliers had landed on Greenly Island.

Todd's station designation is 8BRX.

BREMEN INTEREST RIVALS LINDY

In winging its way across the Atlantic to the westward, the adventure of the German plane Bremen aroused interest rivaling that shown in Lindbergh's famous flight. In Pittsburgh yesterday it seemed that the entire population felt concern for the safety and success of the fliers. Newspaper offices, radio stations, telegraph offices and other sources of news bulletins were besieged with inquiries.

Telephone operators at the switchboard in the office of The Sun-Telegraph yesterday and last night answered nearly 10,000 inquiries. During the afternoon, when ordinarily questions are for the latest baseball scores the inquirers first asked about the Bremen. In nearly every instance where it was stated that the fliers were not heard from, regret was expressed and many added the wish for better news.

After the bulletin from the Bremen's crew early in the night, telling of their landing, there was a deluge of telephone calls seeking more information. Prayers for the aviators were said in yesterday morning services in many Catholic churches of the city.

SUN-TELE COOK BOOK On Sunday, April 22

Numerous requests have come to the Circulation Department for The Sun-Telegraph free cook book. This splendid cook book will be a part of the great Sunday Sun-Telegraph of April 22.

Klan Suit Collapse Stuns

Officers of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and the so-called "banished members" of the organization were stunned today by the collapse of their litigation in the Federal Court. Imperial Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans and his corps of attorneys and klan secret service operatives returned to Washington last night refusing to comment on Judge W. H. S. Thomson's opinion in dismissing their suit from court.

The declaration by Judge Thomson that the plaintiffs "comes with filthy hands and can get no assistance here" seemed to crush the hope of klan leaders to carry the case further. The "banished members" whose cross-suit to restrain the klan from operating in Pennsylvania was dismissed on Wednesday, seemed to get scarcely more encouragement out of the fact that their opponents had lost the case to prohibit them by injunction from interfering with the klan, and as yet have no plans to recover their status.

Attorney Van A. Barrickman, leader of the five outlawed members, declared that their next move would be in the state courts but he could not tell when.

"It's the beginning of the end of the Invisible Empire," Barrickman predicted.

MRS. CATHERINE GINDEL

Arrested when she tried to see her two children at her father-in-law's home, Mrs. Catherine Gindel, 26, 805 Madison avenue, who is separated from her husband, found aid instead of punishment when she faced Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. The magistrate sent a social worker with Mrs. Gindel to the home to see "Jean and Bobby," living at 1316 Howard street.

M'CAUGHTRY'S WILL PROBATED

The will of Joseph F. McCaughtry, well known in Pennsylvania newspaper circles, and broker in news print, who died at his esidence, 314 South Dallas avenue, on April 2, has been filed for probate by his widow, Mrs. J. F. McCaughtry, and a daughter, Mrs. Stanley Burger, of New York City, who are jointly appointed executors of the estate, the value of which is unknown.

With the exception of five small bequests, the greater portion of the estate is given to Mrs. McCaughtry and the remainder to the daughter, Mrs. Burger. The value of the estate is unknown, but for the purpose of administration has been estimated at $100,000.

TAXICAB RUNS DOWN MAN ON NORTH SIDE

Struck by a taxicab at Federal and Ohio streets early today, Peter Baballi, 44, 224 Jackson street was taken to Allegheny General Hospital with serious internal injuries. Roger Maher of 506 Sycamore street, pilot of the cab, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

REPORT TOWNS IN VICE GRIP

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—(AP.)—The Minnesota Anti-Saloon League today will begin investigation of reports that the villages of Orr and Cusson in Northern Minnesota are being held under a reign of terror by outlaws of the North Woods. D. L. McBride, state superintendent, will leave today for Duluth to confer with Sheriff Frank W. Magie.

The villages of Orr and Cusson, deep in the woods, near the Canadian boundary, are reported to be overriden with lawless men and women, bootleggers, murderers and thieves, according to a committee of citizens from the towns, headed by State Senator Fred W. Bassette, who appealed Thursday to Gov. Christianson for help in cleaning out the vice.

More than 20 persons have been murdered near Orr in the last two years, the committee said.

THEY DIDN'T VOTE THERE 10 YEARS AGO--ASK A.E.F.

PARIS, April 14.—(AP.)—Dissatisfied with alterations in their electoral districts, the residents of the town of Sedan have refused to nominate candidates for the coming general elections to the French Parliament April 22.

The townspeople say that they will refuse to have anything to do with the elections unless the former electoral districts are again established.

Sedan is historic as the scene of the German victory over the French in 1870.

Stage and Screen

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Gilbert, Miss Garbo at Work Again; George Fawcett Gets Role in New Picture of Sea

By MILDRED FILLMORE

IF YOU'VE been wondering what ever happened to our old friend, George Fawcett, you needn't wonder any longer. A Hollywood spy reports that he is busy portraying a gruff, pompous, but kindly Spanish officer before the cameras recording Tiffany-Stahl's "Prowlers of the Sea." And John Bowers and Marguerite de La Motte, who also have been among the missing recently—we have news of them. They are doing a vaudeville sketch in the West. A sort of song and dance act, we understand.

By the by, Jeanne Eagels, who a little while back got into a lot of difficulty and front page headlines, is reported as going with Keith-Albee vaudeville for a brief tour. She may do an excerpt from her "Rain" opera. Jeanne, of course, isn't really a movie actress—most of her acting having been associated with the stage. And if you recall her heroine in John Gilbert's "drammer" of Washington newspaper and political life, you may agree she ought to keep to the spoken drama. Hers, somehow, is a personality that loses much of its charm and appeal through its transition to the screen.

Speaking of Mr. Gilbert reminds me that they have put him back to work. For three months he and Greta Garbo have been on a three-month vacation, at the expense of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Reason? The studio had no stories for them. It wasn't a real vacation, however, for they had to keep in contact with the studio daily. During that time, Gilbert drew $60,000, at the rate of $5,000 a week—and Greta collected $26,000 in all. Not bad, not bad at all.

Now John is working again in "Four Walls," under the direction of Jack Conway. And Miss Garbo also has been returned to her emoting, with Fred Niblo telling her how it should be done.

Raoul Walsh, Fox director and the man who first won movie note as the gentleman who shot Lincoln in Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," proves the adage, "once an actor always an actor." Raoul did a portrayal in Gloria Swanson's "Sadie Thompson," which he also directed. And now he's acting a part in his new directorial effort, "Me, Gangster."

Comes word from out of the West that Hoot Gibson has completed "Doubling for Trouble," the fourth of a series of vehicles he is producing and acting in for Universal. The drama is one of six novels by B. M. Bower that Hoot is bringing to the screen. And did you know that B. M. Bower is a woman?

The movie officials have discovered that tears as well as laughs sell their products. Perhaps, after years of screen weeping and a continued fair popularity, Lillian Gish has shown them that there's punch in a sob after all. Anyway, it remains that tear wringers are getting a break at the studios. And sobbing heroines are going over with a "wow." For a striking example, we exhibit Delores Del Rio, who certainly is having her share of weepy moments. The final fadeouts of "What Price Glory" and "Loves of Carmen" left her with a heavy heart. She was overtaken by melancholy in "The Gateway of the Moon." Now, in "No Other Woman," her forthcoming picture, and "The Red Dancer of Moscow," her latest production—yet to be seen here—tragedy enters prominently.

The mention of Lillian Gish causes me to query: What has happened to sister Dorothy? That little miss seems to have disappeared from the screen altogether. What a pity. She was a charming comedienne.

FREE RECITALS ON ORGAN

Easter music will make up the program for the free organ recital to be given by Dr. Charles Heinroth at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Carnegie Music Hall. The "Good Friday Spell" from Wagner's "Parsifal" is included in the program. The opera was Wagner's last music drama. "Gethsemane" by the Danish composer, Otto Malling, also will be played. Other numbers follow: Overture for a Church Festival, Nicolai; "Christus Resurrexit," Ravanello; Paques Fleuries, Mailly; "Voices of Spring," Sinding; "Alleluia," Dubois.

Program for the free organ recital at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon includes: Overture "In Nature," Dvorak; Andante in G (Song of Hope), Batiste; "Spring Song," Mendelssohn; "Resurrection Morn," Johnston; Sonata Pontificale, Lemmens; "To a Wild Rose," "To a Water Lily," MacDowell; "The Bee," "The Cuckoo," Lemare; "Exultemus," Kinder.

PLAYS, MOVIES IN BILLS

Harold Atteridge, who writes the book for almost all of the New York Winter Garden musical attractions, is responsible for "A Night in Spain," which will be seen in the Alvin all next week with matinees Wednesday and Thursday. Al Bryan wrote the lyrics and Jean Schwartz the music.

"Wings," photoplay of aviation in the World War, begins its second week in the Nixon Monday afternoon, April 16. The management of the theater states it has received letters saying that "Wings" has done more to promote an interest in aviation than any other picture.

"The Clutching Claw," opening the second week of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, Monday, is a melodrama of the mystery thriller type. It will have Ralph Morgan and Anne Forrest in the leading roles.

Renie Riano, eccentric comedienne, returns to variety in the Davis next week, after appearing in musical attractions. For her return, she has a satire called "Oh, Teacher," in which she is assisted by Lucian Lalliviere and Wilda Ganeau.

Buck and Bubbles, late of "Weather Clear Track Fast," head the vaudeville bill in Loew's Aldine next week. The feature picture, which stars Mary Philbin, is entitled "Surrender."

The Cansinos, in "In Granada," will be featured on the stage in the Stanley next week. The screen presentation will be "Dressed to Kill," featuring Edmund Lowe.

Lon Chaney does not use a grotesque makeup in his latest picture "The Big City," coming to Loew's Penn next week. Instead he plays the role "straight," with Betty Compson, James Murray and Marceline Day in the cast.

"Festival Week" in the Harris begins Monday and the bill includes "The Record Boys" on the stage and Bryant Washburn in "Skinner's Big Idea" on the screen.

Harold Lloyd, whose new comedy "Speedy," enters upon its second week in the Grand next Monday, has a new leading woman in Ann Christy.

Ray Read, Scotch comedian, who plays the principal role in "Speed Girls," next week's burlesque in the Academy.

The days of the first horseless carriages is the period of "The First Auto," announced for the Olympic screen next week. Barney Oldfield, old-time speed demon, and Patsy Ruth Miller, head the cast.

Next week in the Sheridan Square the vaudeville will include Adelaide Nelson and her baby elephants. The two screen features will be "Domestic Troubles," featuring Clyde Cook and Louise Fazenda and "A Girl in Every Port," featuring Victor McLaglen.

PENN STATE ACTORS PLAY HERE MONDAY

Music and lyrics in the annual Penn State Thespian show, "Honestly Yours," are largely the product of Richard W. Whetstone, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Whetstone, 922 Farragut street, Pittsburgh. This production will be presented by the Thespian Club in the Syria Mosque, Monday evening, April 16. Although this is only Mr. Whetstone's first year at Penn State, he has already gained a reputation as a pianist and composer. He graduated from Peabody High School in 1927 and was quite prominent in the activities of his class, especially along dramatic and musical lines.

GIDEON TO LEAD DOWNTOWN SERVICE

A "travelers service" will be held in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, in charge of J. Ramsey Cutler, former chaplain, Pittsburgh Gideons. Mr. Cutler will speak on the subject, "The Greatest and Most Popular Book."

Married 54 Yrs., Couldn't Pick Quarrel

In these days when quick divorce, companionate marriage and stories of all sorts of domestic strife are attracting attention, a state of married life that may seem incredible to some wedded persons is revealed in this letter to The Sun-Telegraph by H. Butterfield, 87, of Turtle Creek:

"I see in The Sun-Telegraph where Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Corbet, of Marion, Ill., have been married 65 years and never had a quarrel. When they get angry, one leaves the room.

"Mr. Robert McClelland, of Polk, Pa., a brother-in-law of mine, on his fifty-fourth wedding anniversary, proposed to his wife that they have their first quarrel. They sat still for 30 minutes and could not think of anything to quarrel about, so they deferred it until a later date.

"He died six years later without having found cause for a quarrel. He was a veteran of the Civil War."

KNOXVILLE CHRISTIANS TO DESTROY MORTGAGE

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENTS ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Jean Wise Is Wed at Joplin, Mo.

Protestant Day Head

MRS. EDWIN S. FICKES

Mrs. Edwin S. Fickes is chairman for Protestant Day in the "Week for the Blind" to be conducted Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the Wabash Building.

YOU remember, don't you, that attractive Jean Wise who visited Priscilla Brown in Sewickley during the winter? It was announced then that she would marry John Joseph Lincoln, Jr., of Elkhorn, Va., today in her home in Joplin, Mo., and Priscilla is there now to attend the wedding. She left, I believe, on Tuesday. The Lincolns are planning to live in Sewickley Valley, and after the first of May will be at home in Lark Inn Fields, Shields.

Another bit of news from Sewickley is word of the luncheon which Mrs. William Dickson George is giving today in her home in Beaver street for Martha Byrnes and her fiance, Calvin Wells, who are to be married next Saturday. Another party arranged for Martha is a bridge to be given on Tuesday by Mrs. Lawrence Crane Woods, Jr., in the Edgeworth Club.

Quite a few prominent society folks are helping the student nurses of the Presbyterian Hospital, who are going to give a concert on Tuesday night, in Carnegie Music Hall, you know, to raise money to meet their pledges toward the endowment of a nurses' room in the new hospital. The Ralph W. Harbisons are among those sponsoring the concert, and so are Mr. and Mrs. T. Chalmers Darsie, Charles W. Dahlinger, Lewis Hicks, Katharine Tone, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Potter, Mrs. Allen C. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Gibson and others.

It seems that New York is attracting an unusually large number of Pittsburghers these days. Mr. and Mrs. William Frew, of Devon road, are there now, stopping, I believe, at the Barclay for a short time.

And they still keep returning from the South! Coming home today are the Harry Darlingtons and their children, Harry, Cully and Eileen, who have been in Palm Beach all winter. The Benjamin Townsends and their children will be home next week, too, after being at their cottage in Ormond Beach all winter.

Augusta, it appears, was almost as popular with Pittsburghers this winter as the Florida towns, and most of those who have been staying there are drifting back home. Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Clause and their children have been with Mr. Clause's father, William L. Clause, of Sewickley, at Augusta for some time, and they are returning to the Valley tomorrow. Mrs. George Evans Tener, of "Ardarra," is already at home after being in Augusta for several weeks.

The Alexander Laughlins, of "Linganore," will be back home today, I understand. They have been with Mrs. Laughlin's sister, Mrs. H. Page Warden, of Pasadena, for the past month. And the Robert T. M. McCreadys and their daughters, Margaret and Rachel, came home yesterday from a two months' motor trip through California. You remember that Margaret was a debutante this winter.

And from a little further afield come the Ralph E. Flinns, of Kittanning road. They have been touring through northern Egypt, spending some time in Cairo, and just got home this week.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Anna Haehn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Haehn, of Florence place, Mt. Lebanon, and Elmer C. Winter, of Pittsburgh, was solemnized Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Knoxville Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Michael M. McDivitt, assisted by the Rev. Ralph K. Merker. Mrs. Carl J. Saupe was matron of honor and Miss Mary Wortman, maid of honor. Arthur Derby, of Mt. Lebanon, was best man and Miss Lula Yost sang. The ushers included Henry Winter, brother of the bridegroom; Hollis Smith, Clayton Campbell and Mr. Saupe. A dinner in the Fort Pitt Hotel followed the ceremony. After an eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Winter will be at home in Florence place.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stewart Alcorn, of Bryn Mawr, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Alcorn, to James Hiller Hardie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Logan Hardie, of Bartlett street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Siebke, of Brownsville road, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred B. Siebke, and F. G. Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson, of Pemberton street, North Side, which takes place today at 5:30 o'clock in the study of the Rev. F. Beiswenger. Miss Margaret A. Adams, of the East End, and John P. Sisler, of Mt. Lebanon, are the attendants. After May 1, Mr. and Mrs. Davidson will be at home in Pemberton street.

Miss Lois Linhart, of Alliquippa street, entertained with a bridge luncheon this afternoon in her home in honor of Miss Mary Freese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Freese, of Alliquippa street, whose marriage to H. Edwin Ramsey, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Ramsey, of California avenue, will be solemnized May 12. There were 16 guests.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Keenoy, of Jancey street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marian Keenoy, to Sylvester Wagner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Wagner. The announcement was made at a bridge luncheon given this afternoon by Mrs. Keenoy in her home. Six tables were in play. An early September wedding is planned.

CARNEGIE CLUB NAMES MRS. KERR PRESIDENT

Mrs. William T. Kerr was elected president of the Woman's Club of Carnegie at its meeting yesterday. The new vice presidents are Mrs. H. R. Bigham and Mrs. W. C. C. Johnson. Mrs. Chalmers Davies was chosen recording secretary; Mrs. T. I. Cottom, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Garvey, treasurer; the new auditors are Mrs. F. A. Mercer and Mrs. James McPeak and Mrs. H. R. Geib will serve as critic. Mrs. Joseph Schutzman, president of the Women's International League for Peace, who was the speaker for the afternoon, made a strong plea for world peace. "Since military and naval experts agree that another world war would wipe out civilization because it would be fought on a scientific basis—should we commit suicide?" Mrs. Schutzman queried. A second speaker was Dr. James W. Speelman, of the Allegheny County Medical Society, who explained the meaning of the medical practice and chiropractic bill. Music consisted of contralto solos by Mrs. Harry Garvey, accompanied by Miss Margaret Mansfield. Mrs. M. L. Barrick was hostess and Mrs. H. R. Geib, leader.

The Wimodausis Club's annual election has resulted as follows: President, Mrs. H. J. Gearhart; vice presidents, Mrs. A. B. Dickson and Mrs. H. Heselbarth; secretary, Mrs. John Konle; treasurer, Mrs. Adam Daum; directors, Mrs. H. F. Goodman, Mrs. J. D. McClaren, Mrs. W. Wanner, Mrs. J. Simpson, Mrs. J. H. Gillen, Mrs. J. D. Garvey, Mrs. G. Boll, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. G. Snyder, Mrs. T. Sankey, Mrs. J. Sprague and Miss Gussie Konstanzer.

Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of Erie, state president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, will be the principal speaker tonight at the dinner to be given in her honor by the Wilkinsburg B. P. W. in the Penn-Lincoln. Short talks also will be given by Miss Ella King Vogel, state publicity chairman, and Miss Anna Adams, state treasurer, both of whom are members of the Pittsburgh Club. Miss Ruth Seaman will sing and Miss Bessie Smith will read.

* * *

Ellen Brenner as president; Dolores Hinger, vice president; Monica Scott, treasurer; Emma Blunch, recording secretary, and Alice Hegney, corresponding secretary, have been elected by the Girls' Auxiliary to the Mothers' Club of Carrick.

* * *

A bridge luncheon will be given Saturday afternoon, April 28, in the Fort Pitt Hotel by the Oliver Club. Miss Gertrude Knox, of Reifert street, Knoxville, was hostess for this week's meeting of the organization.

FERDINAND FILLION, Conductor.

The faculty and string ensemble of the Fillion studios gave a recital in Carnegie Music Hall last night for the benefit of the Miners' Relief Fund. All participants were well known Pittsburgh musicians, including the chorus from the Tuesday Musical Club.

The important feature of the concert was the unfamiliar music played. In spite of the cleverness of Brahms' Andante, it is uninspired and was a dull introduction to the more picturesque and well-played Arensky suite of silhouettes. The Goosens Trio was the most fascinating music of the evening. The last movement was especially typical of the most comprehensible in contemporary music, and was marked by most exquisite and eerie tone colors. Vaughan Williams' cantata is called a pastoral episode founded on Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progess, and is interesting only on account of the accompanying string ensemble. The voice lines are endlessly monotonous and the choral climax is too brief and simple to be effective.

MILTON C. WORK .
(In Person)
Monday at 2:30 P. M.

IF you play Bridge, whether a beginner or an advanced player, you will welcome this opportunity to take a lesson from the recognized foremost teacher of the game. Actual hands will be played and dealt, under the direction of Mr Work, and many valuable hints imparted for improving one's game, in this course of three lessons, which begins Monday. Tickets, $1 each. Table of four, for the entire series, $10.00.

GARDEN FURNITURE

NOW is the time to choose garden furniture. While landscape gardeners, amateur and professional, are at work planning interesting garden nooks and lovely vistas, the lattices and trellises should not only be planned but placed — before planting time.

Arbors, some with seats, $12.00 to $90.00
Pergola, with two seats, $84.00
Rose Ladders, 8 to 10 feet, $4.00 to $5.00
Fan Trellises, $1.50 and $1.75

GARDEN POTTERY

Even the smallest garden may frequently be made more charming by the addition of a bit of garden pottery, planned as the central point of a group of growing things. And the larger the garden, the greater the opportunity of creating interesting effects with the use of pottery pieces.

Bird Baths, $7.50 to $20.00
Pedestals, $13.00 to $23.00
Vases, $13.00 to $18.00
Benches, $15.00 to $35.00
Fountains, $40.00 to $55.00
Flower Pots, $4.00 to $18.50
Boxes, $7.50 to $10.00
Figures, $10.00
Sun Dial Plates, $5.00 to $7.50
Gazing Globes, $12.00 to $20.00

Live, Win Over All Failure!

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I AM contemplating suicide," Bill wrote me the other day. "I am madly in love with a girl 18 months my senior. I am 19.

"For her I would do anything. She vowed that if I left her she would kill herself. I tested this and saved her life by seconds."

What! Contemplating suicide, Bill, in spring of the year, when you love and are loved!

Usually, there is a love affair back of gloomy and despairing moods of a young man or woman. But sometimes parental misunderstandings are the cause. And the strain of college or swift city life is not infrequently a factor.

BILL explains his "hard breaks." He is planning to enter college next fall. He has learned the State College exams are to be even "stiffer" than he thought. He fears he will fail. This worries him, because of his affection for his parents, who have done so much for him and expect so much from him.

Then there is the girl. He can't afford to marry until he finishes college. Bill's parents object to her, because she is older than he is, because they wish him to go through college, and because as he explains, "they have heard things about her which are utterly untrue."

IT is interesting to note that suicide is and always has been, according to statistics, much less frequent among the Irish than among any other nationality of Europe. Certainly this is not because the Irish as a nation or individuals have had little trouble. Ireland's history is tragic.

May it not be because the blessed Irish sense of humor relaxes over-tenseness, gives a sane prospective, and saves the situation? A kindly sense of humor, together with good humor, can be cultivated until they become second nature, as they are with most of the Irish. And they make life pleasant enough to be worth living.

SUICIDE is only resorted to by those who believe in the least painful way out of a situation. There is no better tonic and inspiration to courage and endurance than wholesome, kindly laughter. Do not take yourself, life and love too solemnly, is my suggestion to Bill.

Look for the funny, sunny, amusing, hopeful side of every situation—it is always there.

"Laugh it off!" You can.

Do your best, but be prepared for failure. Success is built out of beautiful failures, and can be built enduringly on no other foundation.

"Are you prepared to fail?"

This is the question trainers ask athletes about to enter a competition. Easy success is seldom lasting. It is usually a mere flash in the pan. Make your failures, however humiliating they seem at the time, stepping-stones to success. Don't be a quitter. Don't give up. Learn to fail beautifully.

Love of athletics and sports is a salvation to youth. Girls who hike, swim and play tennis and basketball, and live natural, healthy lives, and young men who play baseball, don't commit suicide, no matter how unfortunate they are in love.

"HEART-BROKEN" also sends me a suicide letter. She had a mistaken love affair with a married man. An old friend married her to give her baby a name. He was husband to her in name only and died two months after the marriage. The mother of Heart-Broken hates her because of this mis-step. She tells me she has only her baby, and life is not worth living.

Dear Heart-Broken, how rich you are to have your baby to love and care for! Give it all the wealth of wise, tender mother love that has been denied you.

Both you and Bill would be cowards if you killed yourselves. Every life has black moments. Do not let them decide your fate. Live, do not die, for the sake of those who love and need you. Have patience. Use courage and common sense.

TWO Presidents of the United States, one an idol of the Democratic, the other of the Republican party, in their early twenties, became broken-hearted over hopeless love. But they did not commit suicide. One young man went West and tried to find solace and health in outdoor life. Seven years later he married the woman who shared the White House with him and made the remainder of his life happy.

The girl who refused him I wish you could see her today. She is disagreeable and narrow-minded. What a blessing in disguise her refusal was!

The second young man I refer to idolized a sweetheart who married his rival. He remained loyal to her for 20 years, then married her daughter. And their marriage proved singularly happy and successful. This same young man had to wait one solid year for his first law case when he entered the bar.

Failures? Success is made up of them. Why should you escape or wish to escape your share! But never admit yourself conquered.

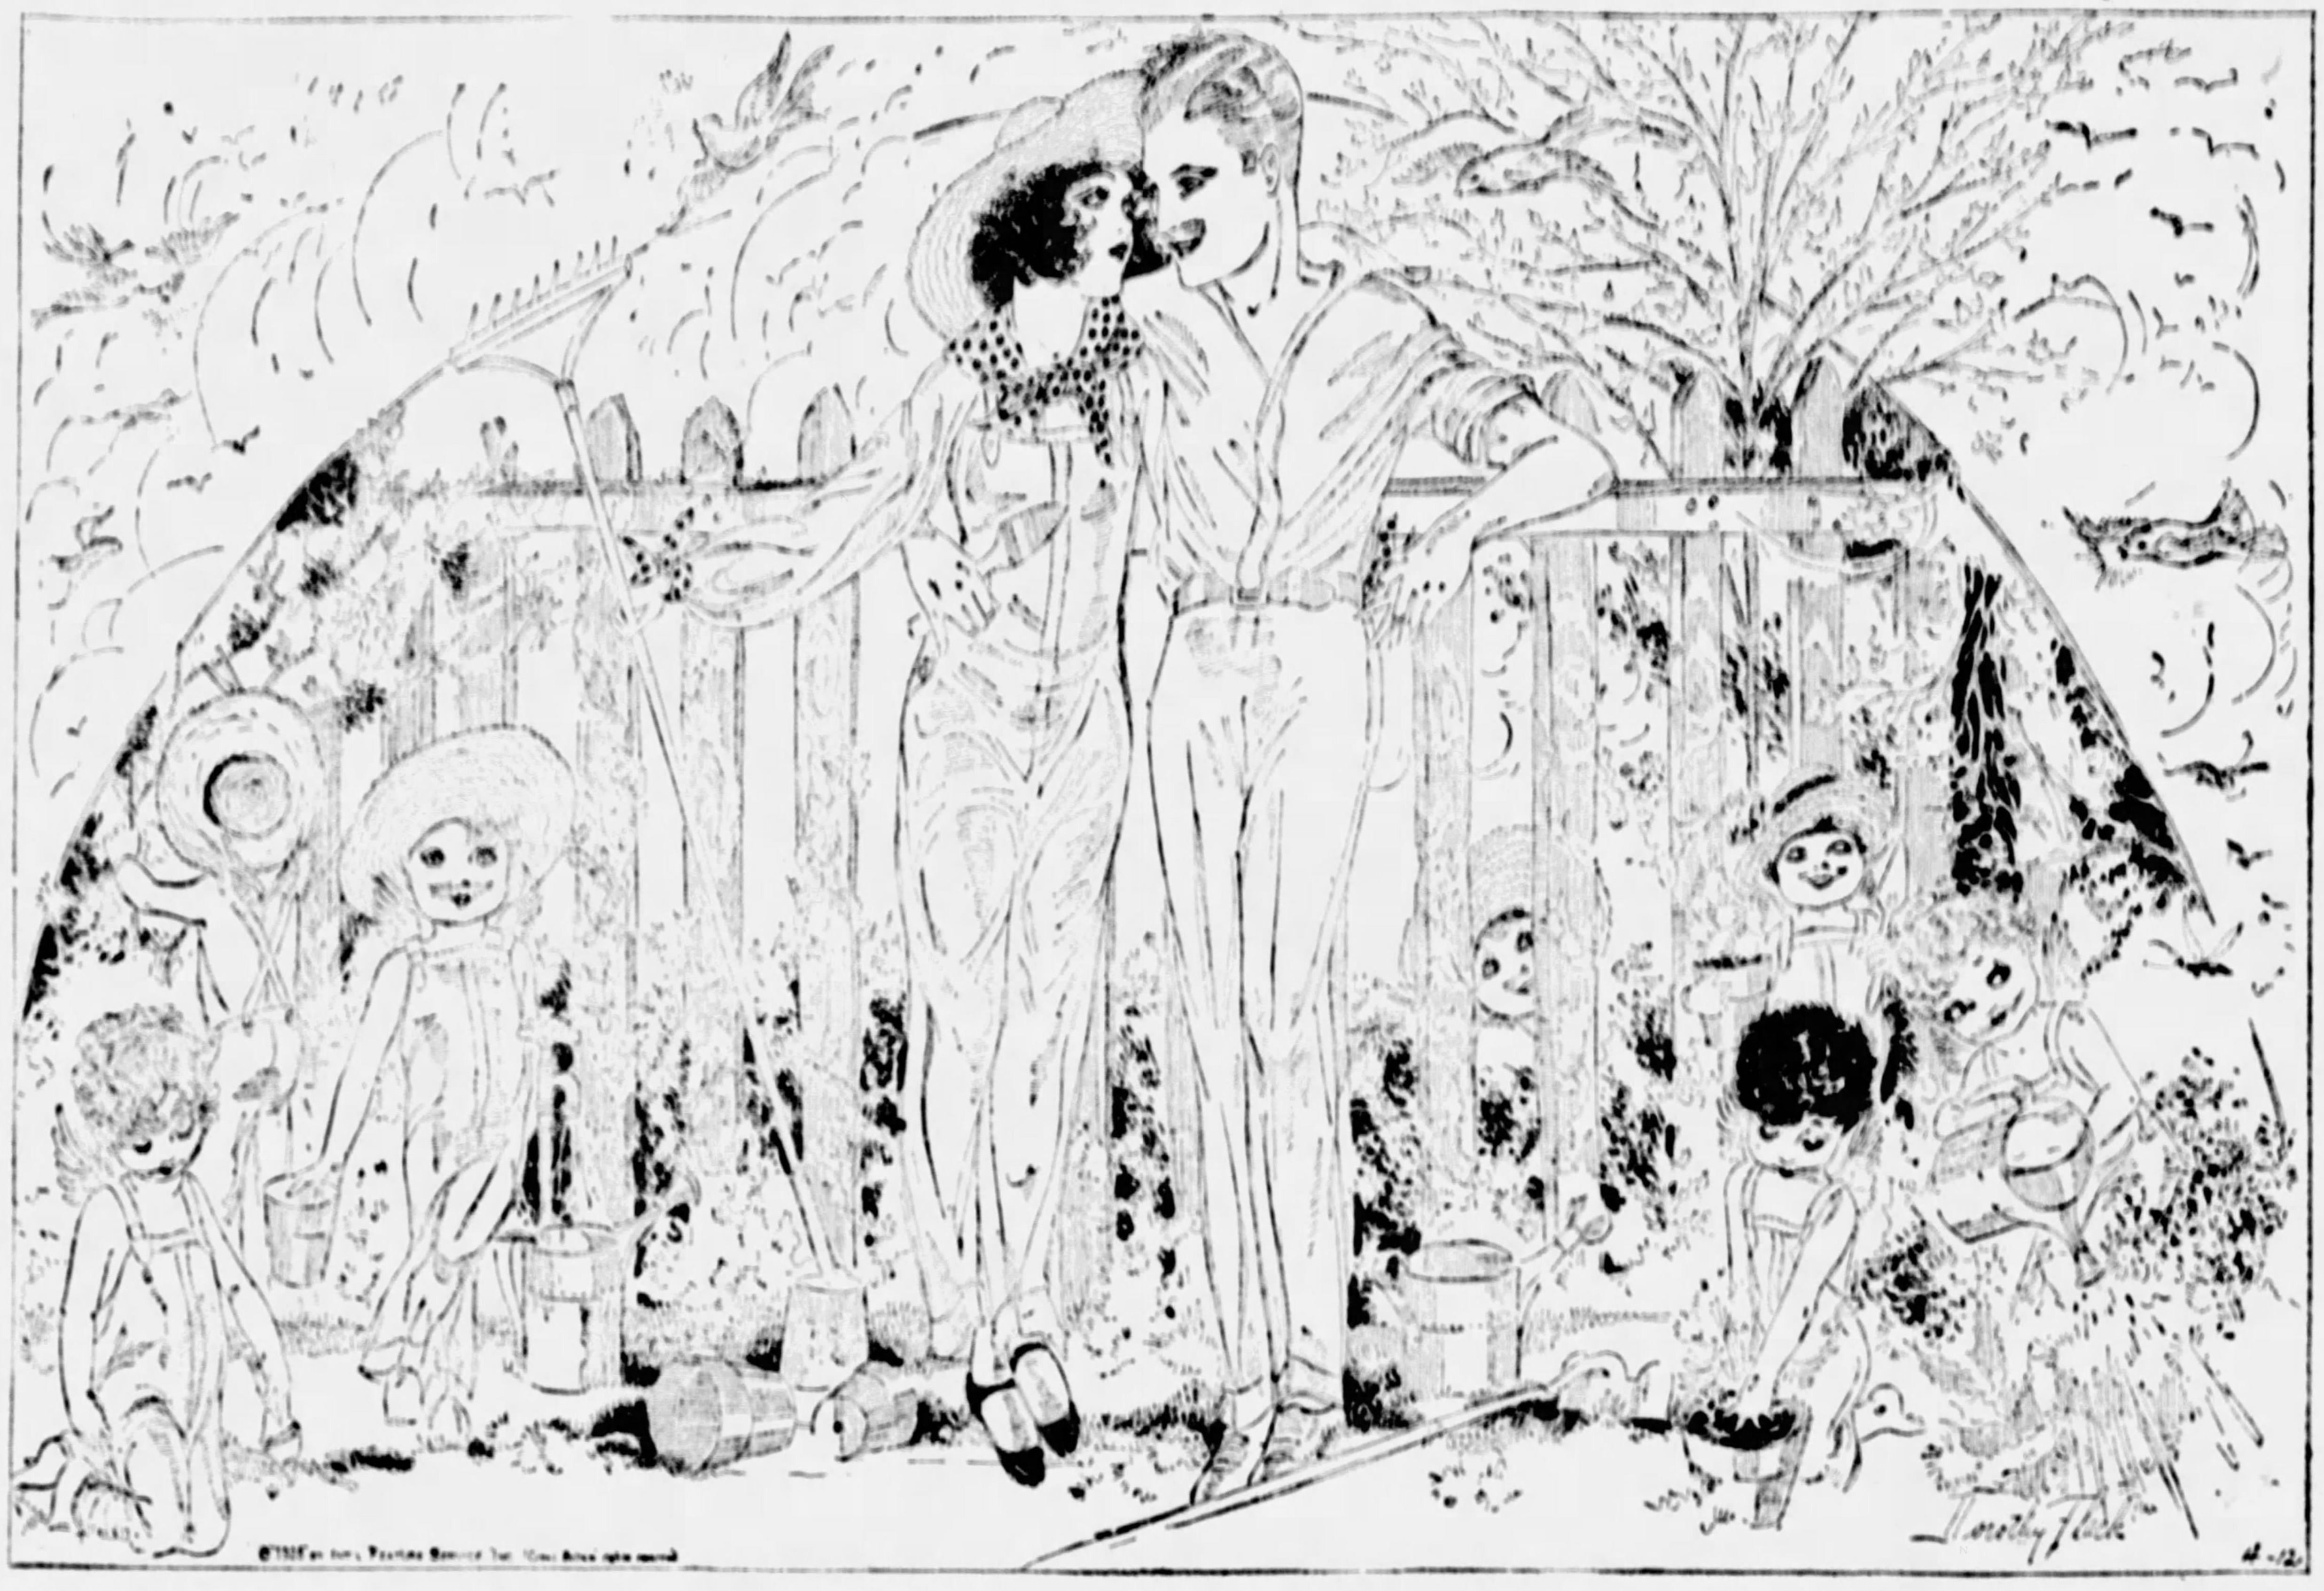
Eggs Benedict

Toast as many English muffins as are to be needed and butter them. Lay a slice of broiled ham on each half muffin, top it with a poached egg and over all turn a good thick Hollandaise sauce, to which add a little grated cheese. Garnish with a thin slice of truffle and a spray of parsley. This is an excellent luncheon dish.

Love Tends a Garden -:- Than Which Is no Power on Earth Stronger or Gentler -:-

Drawn By

Dorothy Flack



WHEN Love tends a Garden all the growing things seem to feel the joyous happiness of its tender care and bloom in richest profusion to repay the care which is so generously given.

For love begets love and gives greater glory to life and living. And what greater glory can there be than a beautiful garden, full of the gay colorings and rich gifts which Mother Nature gives her children? And what sweeter task for two who are making their love nest than the tending and planting of a garden? For a garden tended by love is bound to be beautiful.

Getting close to the heart of Nature puts us in tune with life. And listening to that tune puts a song of happiness in the heart and makes the love that has come to us a dearer, richer thing.

A garden of living, growing things means a garden of beauty in your own heart that reflects and shines happily for all time. See that the garden of your heart is kept free from the weeds of jealousy and suspicion and distrust, for these choke and kill love, even as the unruly weeds thrive and strive to push aside the shy plants that peep from the rich earth. Pluck them out by the roots before they kill love, even as you pull the weeds that spoil your garden. For when Love tends a garden, everything should be perfect and lovely.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 15

Whatever your life or your aim toward progress, remember action is necessary.—Louise Brownell.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows activities in many paths of interest, but many are attended by hazard and complications. New projects have a baneful ray and purely personal matters have an augury for the sensational or abrupt.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very interesting year because of variability and unusual complications. New undertakings are not well aspected, although the finances are well configurated; also the employment.

A child born on this day should be many-sided and probably singular, succeeding through intrigue or subtle talents. It should prosper in life and its love affairs should be interesting.

Notable Nativity: George Yost, inventor of typewriter.

Monday, April 16

Prosperity is a good thing, else the desire for it would not be universal.—L. Trownell.

Monday's astrological forecast makes for all that prospers through well directed effort and diligence as well as through exceptional talents, good judgment and tactful and subtle manipulation of affairs. Small things may vex and annoy. Personal affairs have similar promise.

Those whose birthday it is should have a year of excellent opportunity for reaping rich reward from past efforts as well as for future enterprise. New ventures thrive, especially those requiring subtlety and diplomacy rather than those aggressively handled. Personal affiliations may be spectacular.

A child born on this day should have many talents equipping it for a successful and spectacular career.

Notable Nativity: Charles Spencer Chaplin, movie star.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHY MEN SHOULD MARRY

MY SON, when a bachelor hath reached the Age of Discretion, then, alas, he is more to be pitied than envied.

* * *

For behold, this is the hour of his discontent, when he perceiveth the headache in every wineglass, and the danger in every come-hither glance.

* * *

When he can scent pneumonia in every April breeze and insomnia in every draught of black coffee.

HELEN ROWLAND

When he can see a storm in every flaming sunset, and a breach-of-promise suit in every careless kiss.

When he perceiveth a jail sentence in every jump of the speedometer—and alimony in every serious love affair.

When he decrieth the indigestion in every broiled mushroom—and ptomaine in every midnight lobster.

* * *

When he can see bankruptcy in every prodigal impulse—and premature old age in every all night party.

* * *

When he envisageth hay fever in every flower, and rheumatism in every moonlight stroll.

When he can see retribution in every stolen kiss, and remorse in every reckless adventure.

* * *

When he can see the toothache in every sweetmeat, and the heartache in every young romance.

Then, ah then, hath a bachelor reached the Age of Discretion, when all women are as one woman unto him—and that one a MENACE!

When he walketh "lonely as a cloud"—and is glad OF it!

When golf is his only enthusiasm—other men's wives are his only diversion, and his "symptoms" and his health chart his only excitement.

When he discardeth the rose colored spectacles of youth, and looketh at all the world through a fog of suspicion!

* * *

Then ask me not WHY men should marry while they are yet young upon the bough, and the sap runneth strong in their veins.

* * *

For, verily, verily, it is plain to the eye that a bachelor who hath outlived his enthusiasm is but a collection of complexes completely surrounded by pessimism.

* * *

But a Married Man NEVER reacheth the Age of Discretion! And the only thing harder than to lure a bachelor INTO folly, is to keep a married man OUT of it!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

Be Ever Watchful; Especially Avoid Foul Aiir

HORACE, the Latin poet, was a man of wide social sympathies and great common sense. In his writings I find this: "Man is never watchful enough against dangers that threaten him every hour."

DR. COPELAND

You see evidence of this in the every-day history of the average person. I observe it in the conduct of my colleagues in the United States Senate. They sit for hours in the vile air of the Senate chamber and for other hours in the viler air of the committee rooms. The amazing thing about it is that they seem utterly oblivious to the dangers of such practices.

Go from the fresh outside air into almost any store, office or factory and the vile atmosphere will almost knock you down. Yet the persons working or living in these places appear to be unconscious of what is happening to them.

Horace is right about it. Man is not watchful of the dangers threatening him all the time.

How regularly do you wash your hands before taking food? Do you handle the bread and other foods without cleansing the fingers of the many impurities they carry?

It is not safe or wise to do this. You should be more watchful against this dangerous practice.

The importance of watchfulness on the highways these days is self-evident. Nobody dare cross the street without taking every precaution.

But what do you do about the broken rung in your ladder, or the loose step in your stairway, or the rolled up corner of the oilcloth that may give you a fall? We become absolutely oblivious to many a hazardous surrounding. Fire hazards without number can be located in almost every home.

My old friend, John Kenlon, the fire chief in New York City, tells me that almost all fires start in the rubbish-heaped basements of the homes. A carelessly dropped match or cigaret means the destruction of the building and possibly life as well.

In hospitals and army camps regular inspections are made to see if the premises are in sanitary, healthful and safe condition. Such an inspection should be made in every house and barn, every store and factory, every office, church and school. This survey should be made by serious-minded persons who are determined to locate every hazard to life or limb.

Everybody should be on watch to make sure there is not acquired some injury or disease that will temporarily or permanently incapacitate the victim. As Horace intimates man should be watchful against dangers that threaten him every hour.

Answers to Health Queries

B. D. Q.—What do you advise for shampooing the hair?

A.—Any good soap, such as castile.

* * *

E. G. D. Q.—What is low blood pressure?

2—What causes my legs to cramp at night when I retire?

A.—This is a condition usually found accompanying such diseases as infection, fever, anemia, diabetes, shock, general debility and auto-intoxication. You should consult a doctor. In many instances treatment over a short period of time eradicates all symptoms.

2—Poor circulation is usually the cause of this condition.

L. Z. Q.—Can an 11-months old baby be cured of bronchitis? Will it continue every year for seven years or more? If under a doctor's care and property treated, how long will it last?

A.—Yes, proper care and attention should clear up the trouble in a short time. It is only when bronchitis has become chronic that it is stubborn in yielding to treatment. Follow your doctor's instructions and keep the baby in the fresh air and sunlight whenever possible.

Fans Await First Pirate-Cub Series to Compare Adams With Cuyler—Arthur Nehf Heads List of Come-Backs for 1928.

PITTSBURGH'S first 1928 series with the Chicago Cubs will grip the attention of the fans throughout this district, not only because of their hope that the Bushmen will be going well by then, but because the games in the Windy City will furnish the first real test under championship conditions of the merits of the Cuyler-Adams trade, which was an event of great importance during the winter.

Kiki Cuyler.

They're still discussing that winter dicker hereabouts, and though Cuyler and Adams performed against each other in the five-game practice series in California and Arizona, the conditions then were nothing like they will be in the Chicago series opening April 22.

IN the first series of the season played by the two clubs against different opponents, Cuyler had an edge on Adams in the batting department, as Kiki hit safely in each of the three games at Cincinnati, while Adams was up nine times in two days at St. Louis without putting a safe blow to his credit.

AS A MATTER of fact, you will not be able to get a definite line on the relative worth of Cuyler and Adams for a long time to come. A few games or a few series cannot be called a fair test. For a short period at any stage of the season, one might be going well and the other might be temporarily out of stride. It may take a full season to determine whether Adams is going to be more valuable to the Pirates than Cuyler to the Cubs, or vice versa. Wait until the pennant race waxes hot around mid-summer and every game counts for something. Then we can learn who's who.

HEADING the list of baseball come-backs in 1928 is Pitcher Arthur Nehf. The former Boston, New York and Cincinnati southpaw was considered nothing more than junk when the Reds turned him over to the Cubs last fall. Neuritis was supposed to have ruined his venerable pitching arm beyond repair.

Indeed the records appeared to bear this out, for Nehf was able to pitch only 71 innings all season, was charged with six victories against four defeats, and his earned-run average was 4.06 per nine innings. Several clubs that had a chance to get Nehf declined to take him on.

Arthur Nehf.

YET the veteran left-hander stepped on the mound at Cincinnati yesterday and not only pitched the Cubs to their first victory of the season, but let the Reds down without a run.

Evidently Arthur is going to be heard from this season, if his start may be accepted as an indication of what is to follow.

Local fans hope that his come-back will not include a return of the jinx that he used to hold over the Pirates. Seemingly the Bucs were licked the instant Nehf put on his glove. At one stretch he beat them 12 straight times as a Brave and as a Giant.

Nehf's all-time record is still a very creditable one. Counting yesterday's victory he has won 164 games and lost 108 since he entered the big show in 1915, which means that he has won more than 60 per cent of his games.

CHALK up one for Lou Gehrig, with the Babe yet to be heard from. The Yankee first-sacker, who gave Ruth quite an argument for home-run honors last year, only to lose out in the stretch, 60 to 47, got the jump on his illustrious team mate yesterday by cracking out his first four-baser of the year.

Lou Gehrig.

It will not be surprising if Gehrig gives the Bambino another tussle for the home-run diadem this season. He has already made in a season more homers than any major league player except Ruth ever crowded into one season, and in the natural course of things he may one day top the Babe himself.

HAS it occurred to you that our Pirates, National League champions of 1927, have not won a solitary game from another major league club since they drove the last nail in the Heydler flag last fall? Well, it's a fact.

The Bucs cinched the gonfalon on the day before the closing event of the season in Cincinnati last fall, it will be recalled. They lost the final game to the Reds, and then were beaten four times in a row by the Yankees in the world series.

This spring they lost five successive exhibition games to the Cubs, next dropped a similar game to the Tigers, and followed up by losing both Wednesday and Thursday to the Cardinals. One to the Reds, four to the Yanks, five to the Cubs, one to the Tigers and two to the Cards totals something like 13 straight defeats by major league clubs. Quite a record, even though it is left-handed.

LOU GEHRIG wasn't the only big leaguer to lean against the ball for a home run yesterday. In fact, two of them did it a couple of times. They were Todt of the Redsox and Hauser of the Athletics.

All told, 11 homers were made in the seven games played by the other big league clubs while the Pirates and Redbirds were loafing.

From all indications there is going to be the usual big crop of spring home runs until the pitchers get going in their true strides or the magnates inject a less lively ball, as they have been suspected of doing from time to time during the season.

Only 20 games have been played in the two big loops up to today, but in those 20 games, no fewer than 18 home runs have been pounded out, or an average of almost one to a game.

Todt and Hauser are the only players who have made two homers in one game, but in total four-basers to date they are only tied with Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, who also has two to his credit, though they were not made in a single contest.

MEET N. Y. RANGERS FOR CUP TONIGHT

MONTREAL, Que., April 14.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons will hook up in the fifth and deciding game of the Stanley Cup hockey series here tonight, both clubs reporting on edge for the combat. The count in the competition stands deadlocked at two games apiece with the Maroons slight favorites to annex the trophy which was held last year by the Ottawa Senators.

Losing the first game of the title series by a 2-0 score, the New Yorkers suffered what came near to proving a death blow when, in the second encounter, they lost Chabot, star goal tender, and though they won the game and evened the count in the series, it was feared that they would be unable to fill the shoes of the star goalie acceptably for the remaining games.

After vainly seeking for a sub from league players, Miller of the Niagar Falls team of the Canadian League was signed and he stepped into the break on Tuesday night, and while the New Yorkers lost, 2 to 1, his play was excellent.

Fighting gamely, the Rangers once again evened the series by taking a 1-0 victory over the Maroons on Thursday, with Miller showing every quality that could be desired as a goal tender.

Chabot has improved so that the attending physician is permitting him to attend the titular combat tonight. He will wear dark glasses to protect the injured eye from the glare of the rink.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

CINCINNATI, April 14.—Art Nehf's masterpiece against his former teammates gaves the Cubs their first victory of the year and it sent Nehf's stock soaring to new heights. Phoenix doubtless will use Art's latest exploits to elaborate on the climate of the western state. Nehf spent the winter in the health resort city that stands as an oasis in the middle of a vast desert. Apparently his neuritis, or whatever was the trouble, has disappeared. When the Cubs were in Los Angeles, Artie said he was in fine shape.

THE four battles scheduled in St. Louis between the Cardinals and Cubs should be fraught with intense thrills. The Cubs regard themselves as very serious contenders for the flag; they are natural hustlers and they have many championship qualities.

BURLEIGH GRIMES did not make an error all last season and he is one of the most active among the pitchers in fielding his position. It fell to the lot of the Minerva mixer to slip on his first chance of 1928 but Burleigh was trying for a brilliant play when he made his wild heave to Traynor. He was turning and throwing at the same time and he would have nailed plans for the opening clash of the year in the Rhineland village. The two wallopings sustained by the league champions in St. Louis were not entirely unexpected, yet Donie would be feeling much better if his club had achieved an even break in competition with the ambitious Redbirds.

Be that as it may, today is a new day for the Freebooters. The third contest in St. Louis could not be staged on account of wet conditions and when the Pirates tried to take a workout they had little success, the showers chasing them just as they got under way. Skipper McKechnie of the Cards gave Bush permission to use the park after the contest was cancelled, but a new rain fell on the scene, drenching the Buccos and sending them to their clubhouse. The postponed game was moved ahead to Sunday, July 1, when it will help to make up a double-header.

PEABODY HOLDS LEAD IN PITT TANK MEET

FAILURE to place men in the qualifying heats of the 100-yard breast-stroke and the 100-yard free-style events of the annual University of Pittsburgh Interscholastic swimming championships in Trees pool last night may cost the East Enders a victory in the meet which will be concluded this afternoon.

The Peabody team, by winning the 160-yard relay and placing Alveriso third in the finals of the 220-yard free-style, led the scoring last night with 11 points. Perry High finished second with nine and Schenley and South tied for third with eight. Homestead, Duquesne and South Hills brought up the rear with five, three and one respectively.

If Schenley, with men in all three final events today, can get a first and a couple seconds, it will be able to nose out Peabody, provided Reilly of Peabody doesn't win the 40-yard free-style and

Holland Clergy Roused

AMSTERDAM, Holland, April 14.—(AP.)—Hostility to the forthcoming Olympic games here has arisen in Dutch religious circles and a report on the subject by seven Amsterdam clergymen has been made public.

The report, adopted at a recent meeting of the Council of the Dutch Gereformeerde Church of Amsterdam, which must not be confused with the better known and older Dutch Reformed (Hervormed Church, says:

"Taking all things into consideration, there appears to us to be ample justification for decisively opposing the forthcoming Olympic games. Here everything is opposed to the principle of loving God above all else and loving one's neighbor as oneself. The strongest being is here the most exalted and is raised to the place which God alone should occupy. The neighbor, by craving for notoriety and personal glorification, allows himself to be exploited in order to satisfy the craving of the masses for sensation and emotion.

"Not only the character of the games, but also everything connected with them must compel us with all the earnestness at our command to issue a warning and strengthening word against this glorification of man against this cult of the hero, which is opposed to practically all God's sacred commands."

Meanwhile a special committee has been formed by the religious denomination with the task of undertaking an evangelistic campaign in Amsterdam during the games.

OPEN SANDLOT PLAY TODAY

By TOM BIRKS.

With Leo Carroll and Smoky Joe Williams groomed for action, sandlot followers should see a classy opening day hurling battle in the home of the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field today, when the Eastern Ohio League all-stars meet the Homestead Grays.

Carroll usually pitches his best game of the season against Posey's stars, and fans will probably remember that wonderful pitching duel staged last season when the same teams met.

Williams, the real veteran of the Grays, is also expected to have a good season after showing good form in the initial game at Wheeling last Sunday. Posey will dash a new shortstop in Wagner of the Brooklyn Royal Giants in this game.

BOWLING and BILLIARDS

BOWLERS competing in the fifth day's rolling in the American Duckpin Congress tournament on the Haus alleys, North Side, failed to dislodge any of the high score holders in any of the events. Last night's scores in the five-men, doubles and singles were uniformly low.

In the five-men event, the Pastime team of Aliquippa, Pa., turned in the best score, a 2,383, which places the quintet fairly well up among the leaders. The next best score was recorded by the Aspinwall Recreation team, a 2,224. The Troy Hill five rolled a 2,155 and the Aluminum Seal Company outfit a 2,056.

In the doubles, W. Shaffalo and Merges rolled 989, which will hardly place them in the high money. Fray and Emery bowled 954 for second high for the night. Middlehurst and Preisinger rolled 904. All the other scores were below 900.

J. A. Knauff rolled 592 for the high single score. Ganoe was second with 512, these two being the only singles scores above 500.

The leading scores follow:

MARKET SQUARE TOURNEY

The Arcade team of the South Side crashed through in the team event of the Market Square bowling tournament last night with a fine score of 2,622 to take the lead. The Arcade five score is just 100 pins better than the second place Murphys.

The Wuerthele five rolled second high score for the night with a 2,481 and the Bank five was third with 2,262.

In the doubles, the leaders remained untouched, though three scores were bowled over 1,000. The Bykoski-Bumbaugh duo rolled a 1,093 and the Butts-Taboiski pair scattered the wood for 1,041. Zorn and Torreyson rolled 1,023 for third for the evening.

Buckley, with games of 222, 217 and 176 rolled the third high singles score for the tourney, a 615. Burns turned in a 583 and Hamer a 514. A'Hearn had 518 and Hartzell 501.

The leading scores follow:

CHAMP DETHRONED

CHICAGO, April 14—(AP.)—The National three cushion billiard champion, Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, has been dethroned and a new titleholder, either Willie Hoppe of New York or Johnny Layton of St. Louis will be crowned tonight.

The breaks of the game against him all the way, Reiselt lost his opportunity to retain his title in the National tournament last night when he lost to Layton, 50 to 29, in 46 innings while Hoppe defeated Gus Copulos of Detroit, 50 to 24, in 51 innings.

Hoppe and Layton meet in the final match tonight, each with six victories and two defeats. Reiselt has yet to play Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, but the best he can do is to tie for second place.

The standings:	W.	L.	R.
J. Layton, St. Louis	6	2	9
W. Hoppe, New York	6	2	10
O. Reiselt, Philadelphia	5	3	8
G. Copulos, Detroit	5	4	8

KAYOS FEATURE A. A. M. BOUTS

Finals in the A. A. M. A. senior amateur boxing tournament, which got under way at Motor Square Garden last night, will be fought tonight, with some crack bouts promised. The meet has drawn a star entry list and is under the auspices of the Islam Grotto M. O. V. P. E. R.

In addition to the semi-finals and finals in the five lighter classes which will be fought tonight, the champions in the heavier classes will be determined. Winners will be sent to Boston next month to take part in the Olympic elimination tournament.

The summary:

160-pound class—Earl Humphries, Superior A. C., knocked out Billy Southward, Night Hawk A. C.; John Brown, Willow Club, won from Eli Radakovich, Duke O'Hara Club; Tom Fairful, Swissvale A. C., won from Charles Fulks, unattached; Mike Cimi, Swissvale A. C., won from Mike Salvatire, Tarentum A. C.; Archie Parker, Leavitt-VanBuren A. C., won from M. J. Foley, Lawrenceville, Triangle A. NOTES of the BOXERS

PETE ZIVIC boxes Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., in a 10-round bout in New York tonight, their third meeting. Teddy Welch of McKeesport boxes Freddie Fitzgerald at Youngstown, and the finals of the A. M. A. tournament will be fought at Motor Square Garden.

Jimmy Bronson, manager of Jack Zivic, who has not been in Pittsburgh with his boxers for some time, will come here to second Zivic against Jack Katkish at Motor Square Garden Monday night. Katkish is a former member of the Bronson entourage. If Bronson thinks his presence in Zivic's corner will help to unnerve Katkish, he is mistaken, according to Katkish himself, who said, when he heard about Bronson's coming: "I'm glad he'll be here. I want him to see how much I've improved since I left him."

appointed home state crowds by trailing in more than an hour behind Erickson. Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England, who lately has pushed Payne hardest for the lead, ran in a dead heat with Payne in 5 hours and 2 minutes flat. Fourteen other runners were in when Payne and Gavuzzi arrived.

Arrival of the caravan in Oklahoma City meant a court action for C. C. Pyle, the promoter. A garnishment certificate attaching the $5,000 put up by the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce for routing the race through the city, was issued in District Court to Ralph V. Scott of Illinois, a former member of Pyle's professional football team.

The Chamber of Commerce, in an effort to recover its guarantee money, made a gala event of the arrival of the runners at the State Fair Grounds and persons who wished to see the finish for the day paid to pass through the turnstiles.

The 12 leaders in the race and their elapsed time for the 1,491.5 miles, follows:

Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla, 251:51:31.
Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, 253:21:50.

VOIGT KEEPS GOLF TITLE

PINEHURST, N. C., April 14.—(AP.)—George Voight, Washington golfer, stroked the Pinehurst course three under par to win the North and South amateur championship for the second consecutive year here yesterday.

With a 69, the District of Columbia player defeated John Dawson, Chicago, one up at the thirty-sixth hole.

The Washington golfer brought the contest to a close with a birdie three on the thirty-sixth hole. After finishing 27 holes one up on the Chicagoan, Voight lost the advantage when Dawson sank a 12-foot putt to win the tenth. They halved the eleventh and seesawed into the lead for the rest of the match.

This is the second time the title has been won two consecutive years by the same golfer, Allan Lard, also of Washington, winning in 1907 and 1908.

Endurance Swim For Women Arranged

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP.)—A world's endurance swimming contest for women swimmers, in which Mrs. Lottie O. Schoemmell, of New York, and Miss Mercedes Gleitz, English typist and long distance swimmer, will participate, will be held in New York harbor during the month of August, Capt. George H. Maimes, manager for Mrs. Schoemmell, announced last night.

Capt. Maimes said that Gertrude Ederle, Mrs. Gade Corson, first mother to swim the English channel, and Miss Clarabelle Barrett, New Rochelle, N. Y., school teacher, also would be invited to participate.

The course of the swim roughly, will be from the Battery to Sandy Hook, Capt. Maimes said.

The decision to hold the contest is the result of Miss Gleitz's acceptance of Mrs. Schoemmell's challenge, issued earlier this week after Miss Gleitz announced that she had succeeded in her fourth attempt to swim the Straits of Gibraltar.

PEABODY

Ackerman of the same school is unplaced. Schenley appears to have the best chance to finish ahead of the East End swimmers.

One record was tied and a new one set in the competition last night. The Peabody relay team equalled the time it made last year in the 160-yard event, negotiating the distance in 1:23 1-5. Stanton of Schenley shattered the 100-yard backstroke mark by turning in a time of 1:06 2-5. This also bettered the pool and university record.

Capt. Bill Wright of the Pitt varsity swimming team won three first places and smashed his own mark in the 40-yard free-style to lead the way in the university championships. He took the fancy dive, 100-yard free-style and the 40-yard free-style, covering the latter distance in 18 4-5 seconds.

The summary:

SCHOLASTIC FINALS.

160-yard relay—Won by Peabody (Reilly, Ackerman, Alderisio and Sheridan); Perry, second; Schenley, third. Time, 1:23 1-5.

Fancy dive—Won by Carrick, South; David, Perry, second; Stockdale, South Hills, third.

100-yard back stroke—Won by Stanton, Schenley; Carrick, South, second; Szawaus, Schenley, third. Time, 1:06 2-5.

220-yard free-style—Won by Vallowe, Homestead; Wargo, Duquesne, second; Alverisio, Peabody, third. Time, 2:38.

SCHOLASTIC QUALIFYING HEATS.

40-yard free-style — Reilly, Peabody; Huerkle, Schenley; John Schmieler, Carrick; Ackerman, Peabody; Hyslop, Schenley.

100-yard free-style — Vallowe, Homestead; Kline, Schenley; Davies, Westinghouse; Schaltenbrand, Homestead; Norton, Perry; Chidbone, Allegheny.

UNIVERSITY CHAMPIONSHIPS.

40-yard free-style — Won by Wright; Robb, second; Jackson, third. Time, 18 4-5.

Fancy dive—Won by Wright; Mango, second; Swenson, third.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Mango; Woolridge, second; Harper third. Time, 1:49 3-5.

220-yard breast stroke—Won by Swenson; Jackson, second; Rosenberg, third. Time, 2:15 1-5.

100-yard free-style—Won by Wright; Woolridge, second; Valentine, third. Time, :56.

Y. M. H. A. HANDBALL LAURELS AT STAKE

The handball championship of the Young Men's Hebrew Association will be at stake today when Sol Chersky opposes Nat Winkelman in the final of the annual tournament staged by the Bellefield institution for its members.

Chersky defeated Silverstein in the semi-finals, while Winkelman advanced to the finals by defeating Gladstone.

Ruben Harris, last year's champion, was eliminated from the tournament in the second round by Chersky.

"Americanized," Paulino Booed In Paris

PARIS, April 14.—(AP.)—Paulino Uzudun, Basque heavyweight of Spain, arrived in France for a vacation after a series of matches in the United States—and ran into a flock of boos that rivaled anything that greeted him in American rings.

Proudly announcing that he had $150,000 deposited in banks here and in San Sebastian, Spain, as a result of his American tour, Paulino stepped into the St. Lazare station to face the crowd awaiting his arrival. The cheers of the throng changed to boos when the now thoroughly Americanized Spaniard stubbornly refused to autograph photographs for admirers.

A woman in the crowd shouted in a shrill voice: "The big ignorant can't write his own name," and Paulino appeared nonplussed.

LINTON, JONES HERE

Catcher Claude Linton and Infielder Coburn Jones, two of the young players tried on the training trip of the Pirates this Spring, arrived in Pittsburgh today. They weer sent home by Manager Bush when the Bucs left St. Louis for Cincinnati yesterday, and will remain here to await the arrival of the team next week.

PIRATES

battle of this afternoon. Miljus was on the cards for yesterday. The Pirates expected to look at the offerings of Red Lucas, the same Red who had such a big season for the Hendrickse crew in the last race.

The fact that Peter Donohue is not with the Rhinelanders does not worry the Buccos. Peterkin so far has failed to come to terms with his masters. In a talk with the Pirates when the club was in Dallas, Pete, who came over from his Ft. Worth home, stated that he would not accept the rather radical cut which the Cincinnati owners had inserted in his contract.

Donohue is said to have collected $12,000 for his performances of last year. The owners, so the story goes, tried to force a 25 per cent reduction on the big pitcher and Peter balked.

Before taking their leave of the Reds yesterday, the Cubs dealt the home crew a shutout surprise. The Reds won two in a row over the Bears and are thus ahead of the sport as they tackle the Pirates. The Bruins changed battlefields with the Buccos for the next four days, the Chicagoans going over to St. Louis for a series of fights with the high flying Redbirds.

Manager Bush yesterday sent Catcher Claude Linton and Infielder Coburn Jones back to Pittsburgh where they will work out. At the same time Donie sent an order to Lee Meadows instructing him to remain in Pittsburgh until the return of the Pirates next Wednesday. Meadows will work out with the two youngsters.

CHILLY SAUCE

his man with an accurate pass. Grimes is a positive type.

THE foghorn voice of Joe Harris, together with Joe's decisive way of calling plays, are missed in the games played to date. Harris does not possess the native ability of Grantham, but George must extend himself considerably before he equals Coulter Joe as a teamworker.

THE first series of the season at Forbes Field should be a corker. The Redbirds will be there to assist in the flag-raising festivities, the opener to be followed by two more games before the Pirates head for Chicago.

ST. LOUIS papers are making a big fuss over Frank Frisch, and well they may. The Fordham Flash is captain of the Redbirds and in his post he is a fine aid to Skipper Bill McKechnie. Then, too, there is Tommy Thevenow who bows to no shortstop in the business in defensive skill. Thevenow is a real marvel around the difficult position.

BOB O'FARRELL, erstwhile manager of the Redbirds, appears to be well contended in his role behind the plate. Bob was voted the most valuable player in the league in 1926 as he performed under the bat with Rogers Hornsby as boss. O'Farrell is a young man who has plenty of time for managerial worries.

YALE GOLF CAPTAIN MASON, DIXON CHAMP

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—W. K. Lannan, Jr., Columbus, O., captain of the Yale golf team won the Mason and Dixon golf title here when he defeated Walter L. Richard, New York, 3 and 2.

The final match of the annual tournament was played over 36 holes.

JUDGE THOMSON SCORES KLAN

JUDGE THOMSON, reviewing the evidence, in dismissing the suit of the Ku Klux Klan against the five banished members says:

Under the testimony of the defense, which comes from klansmen themselves, the court has no difficulty in finding, and does now find, that the plaintiff corporation obtained its charter for charitable, eleemosynary, patriotic and other like purposes, and being so chartered was granted by the state of Pennsylvania a right to do business within the commonwealth, presumably for the purposes set forth in its charter. That acting under the guise of its chartered purposes, it acquired a membership in this state of from 240,000 to 300,000 persons.

That in violation of its charter, and in violation of its own constitution, it has established and is maintaining a form of despotic rule, which is being operated in secret, under the direction and authority of the plaintiff's chief officers. That in violation of the rights and liberties of the people, it has set up tribunals not known to the law, before which citizens of the commonwealth, not members of the klan, are brought, subjected to some form of trial, and, upon conviction, severe corporal punishments are imposed, painful, humiliating and often brutal in their character, and in some instances destructive of life itself.

DEFIANCE OF LAW

That under the direct authorization of the principal officers of the klan in the state, men are designated for punishment, and are punished and mal-treated without any legal charge being preferred against them, and without a hearing or trial, in open and flagrant violation of the constitution and laws of the land. That the plaintiff organization through its actual operations and teachings has stirred up racial and religious prejudices, fomented disorder and encouraged riots and unlawful assemblies, which have resulted in flagrant breaches of the peace, defiance of the law, bloodshed and loss of life, and that such unlawful assemblies and riots have, in many instances, been brought about for the avowed purpose on the part of the officers in control, of increasing the membership of the organization.

That in the secret operations of the corporation's activities, and in hostility to the civil authorities, military organizations are established and maintained, with arms, regalia and equipment, with officers of varying rank and military titles; these officers being bound to obey without question, the commands of the superior officer in authority of the plaintiff corporation.

MENACE TO PEACE

In addition to this, bands, known as "Knight Riders," or the black-robed gang, armed, equipped and masked are formed and operated here and there throughout the country, both organizations being used at times as instruments of terror, oppression and violence, and being thus a continuing menace to the public peace and destructive of the public order.

EVIDENCE CONCLUSIVE

The evidence in this case establishes conclusively gross violations of the law committed by the plaintiff within the Western District of Pennsylvania.

On the 6th day of July, 1923, under the direct orders of Sam Rich, grand dragon of the state of Pennsylvania, a band of seven or more men were sent into Beaver county to punish a Negro. Pursuant to this unlawful purpose, they stopped the victim on the tracks of a railroad, thrust revolvers against the body of the Negro, bound and gagged him, threw him face downward in an automobile, the occupants of the machine sitting with their feet upon him. They then took him to Patterson Heights, a suburb of Beaver Falls, and although earnestly protesting his innocence, tied a rope around his neck and threw it over a limb of a tree and swung him from the ground. After being thus suspended for a time, they then let him down, obtained a confession through these circumstances of duress and punishment, and after kicking him in the stomach and otherwise abusing him, left him and returned to Pittsburgh.

On the fourth day of June, 1922, the said Sam D. Rich, grand dagon of the state, ordered the kidnaping of a little girl, 3 or 4 years of age, who was living with its grandparents on Negley avenue, in the City of Pittsburgh. Not only did he order the kidnaping but was present and took an active and leading part therein in seizing the child when in front of its home, put the child in an automobile, transferred it to another automobile where it was transported to parts unknown. The grandparents from whom the kidnaping was effected, having never to this day learned of the whereabouts of the child, or whether or not she is alive or dead.

RESPONSIBILITY FIXED

I also find as a fact that Hiram Wesley Evans was present and spoke to the assembled multitude at Carnegie immediately before the riot; that he and Rich were well aware the civil authorities of Carnegie had forbidden the parade through the borough, and that in defiance of this position and in utter disregard of the consequence which might naturally follow, he gave the order to march, which resulted in the serious riot in which men were beaten and severely injured, at least one other man was wounded by gun fire and another man was shot to death. Under these circumstances, he was directly responsible for the riot and blood shed which ensued.

The evidence also disclosed that in the state of Texas, men were brought before the klan, tried and convicted, and in some instances were subjected to brutal beatings, and in others were condemned to death and burned at the stake.

JUDGE'S CONCLUSION

"In view of all the facts disclosed by the evidence, the plaintiff corporation, stigmatized as it is, by its unlawful acts and conduct, could hardly hope for judicial assistance in a court of the United States, which is highly commissioned to extend to all litigants before it, without distinction of race, creed, color or condition, those high guaranties of liberty and equality vouched safe by the constitution of the United States. To a court whose duty it is to recognize and uphold religious freedom as the first fruits of our civilization; to secure to every accused the right to full knowledge of the accusation against him, and a fair and impartial trial of the issue, before a jury of his peers; a court which fully recognizes that this is a government of law and not of men, and that no man shall be deprived of his life, his liberty or his property without due process of law, this unlawful organization, so destructive of the rights and liberties of the people, has come in vain asking for injunctive or other relief. They come with filthy hands and can get no assistance here. Plaintiff's prayers for relief are denied and the bill is dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff."

Girl Lawyer-Cook Made Receiver for Cafe

A good cook as well as a member of the bar, Attorney Anne X. Alpern has been made permanent receiver for the Model Restaurant Company. When the case came up in Common Pleas Court, and the black-eyed lawyer was asked if she knew how to bake pies, she answered in the affirmative. The court smiled, fixed the bond at $2,000, and named Ethan A. Scholnick and William G. Barton appraisers.

ARREST HUSBAND IN FILM GIRL'S DEATH

HOLD MATE IN GIRL'S DEATH

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—Facing a murder charge and two other accusations, Arthur F. Evans was in police custody here today as the latest outgrowth of the mysterious case of his young wife, Helen St. Clair Evans, motion picture actress, whose death in Hollywood last year was said to be caused by self-administered poison.

Evans' arrest, it was stated, culminated a prolonged police investigation prompted by the father of his dead wife, J. Daniels, well-to-do proprietor of a New York beauty shop.

Three Negroes "strongarmed" Fred Cooper of 6266 Frankstown avenue in Luna street at Everett street this morning and stole $1.40.

Jewelry and silverware valued at $400 were stolen from the home of James McNeily at 2102 Bodella street this morning. A member of the family was aroused by a noise and found a burglar had been in the house—and had gone.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

Whole Body Responses That Make Up Our Behavior

Vivid Word Picture of Reactions Produced by a Movie Thriller; Adjustments Ever Called For

To live and to learn, as man must, is to take chances, and to take them constantly, was emphasized in yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings." Sensory data is accumulated, as the telling of time by the stomach and passing events. Eyes, nose, ears and palate, trained, guide us along the way.

Man's Superior Equipment

CHAPTER LVIII.

FROM a sunlit street I enter a motion picture theater. It seems pitch dark. After a few seconds I can see my way to a vacant seat; a few moments later I can recognize faces 20 feet away; the theater itself is no lighter than when I entered. My eyes had become adapted. How?

GEORGE A. DORSEY

In sunlight, the pupils of my eyes were contracted to shut out some of the light-waves. Inside the theater the pupils began to dilate, thus letting the light-waves fall on the outer part of my retina, the region of the rods. In these rods is a substance called rhodopsin (rose-eye) or visual violet. It decomposes — "bleaches" — under light-waves as short as 320/1,000,000 of a millimeter in length. Light-waves are forms of energy. Pupil dilation exposed my rods to this energy. As a result, a photo-chemical change took place in the rhodopsin: my eyes were "adapted;" I could see.

The human eye is a complex mechanism of the general nature of a photographic camera in which certain photosensitive chemicals are excited by varying amounts of light-wave energy. A chemical reaction takes place. The impulse of that reaction is carried by the optic nerve into the brain; if we are not color-blind we "see" red, yellow, blue, etc., according to the length of light-waves.

Unforgettable Things

But whatever we see, the fact is that we are of the nature of a mechanism which is activated by external stimuli. During the reaction chemical changes take place under conditions which transfer energy. The changes made, the energy transferred, we are by that amount and to that extent changed. Each change is registered somewhere within us, and to that extent influences all subsequent reactions.

Those who lived through the Iroquois Theater fire cannot forget it. It is buried into their reaction-system and influences their behavior. During those few moments the dynamic nature of their reaction complex received impulses that changed the quality and quantity of its sensitivity. To thousands the name Iroquois is a cause of excitation, an energy-laden stimulus calling out avoiding reactions. The theater was renamed.

I am now in my seat in what was once the Iroquois Theater. I note the exits more attentively than usual, decide which is mine should "anything happen." That stimulus is so strong and memories so crowd my mind that I am hardly conscious of the preliminary music: it arouses no activity in the cortex of my brain. My revery ends when the music changes. My senses now become alert. I began to focus my attention on the picture I am about to see, the picture that diverted me from my routine work and impelled me from the sunlit street into the darkened theater.

Meanwhile, certain cortical centers of my brain have become the dominant centers of activity. They are now consuming energy at a rapid rate; the arteries leading to the brain have expanded to supply the demand for more oxygen; muscles controlling the bellows which work my lungs have been stimulated to permit of the rapid elimination of the carbon dioxide of oxygen combustion and the rapid restoration of the supply of oxygen. Before the first scene is flashed on the screen, impulses of a hundred natures have been dispatched from brain centers and responses made throughout the entire bodily mechanism. And as scene after scene of "The Birth of a Nation" is unwound, new impulses are hurried along.

Reacting to the Play

By the time the picture is finished, I have fled in terror; I have committed murder; I have fallen in love at least twice; all within two hours. No part of my body has been quiet, unaffected, unchanged. Few, if any, of my muscles but have joined in: few, if any, of my glands have lain dormant. Centers of activity have shifted—as one flees or fights, leads an army to victory or falls in defeat, or must remain in one's seat while lovely Mae Marsh is driven to her death by a madman.

The least active organ in my body was the digestive. Digestion is a complicated process requiring much energy: my energy was exhausted elsewhere—I had none to spare for alimentary canal. All I asked of it was sugar from the liver. Sugar feeds the fires of hate and fear and love, and brainstorms.

In those brainstorms—and there are many in "The Birth of a Nation"—millions and millions of neurons listened in, gave decisions, issued orders; correlating, co-ordinating, adjusting the body, preparing it to fight, to murder, to mate. The body responded. Each bit of bodily machinery could respond because it was accustomed to respond to messages carried by the nerves of the body. The body grew up with the nerves. What the nerves know, the body knows: the nerves integrate the body and enable it to function as an individual.

The Integrated Body

And yet, with all the excitement and needs of blood to brain and to the fighting-fleeing mechanism, the long intestine kept its rhythm, the fine cilia lining air-pipes kept moving like fields of grain, the glottis never forgot to execute its complicated movements, however, hard I swallowed. Even my empty stomach kept its place; it did not growl or make hunger-contraction gestures.

It is the entire body that responds, the entire body that learns, the entire body that grows up. It was the entire body that recalled with bated breath the Iroquois fire, noted the exits, disregarded the music and, spellbound, saw "The Birth of a Nation."

All living beings are excitable and must make adjustments; man most of all. Other animals come in contact with as many points of the outside world as man, but none can so vary its responses, because it has no such storehouse in which to store responses already made; nor so many words with which to answer back; none must respond to such diverse, complex and rapidly changing situations.

On one side of me was a Negro, on the other a Virginian; in front, [illegible] maid; behind, a youth. What w[illegible] "The Birth of [illegible] Nation" to th[illegible] minds' eyes? [illegible]

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE captain of an old-time whaler out on a two-year cruise for oil; the traditional mule driver; the top-kicker in a hard-boiled Regular Army outfit; all such figures of hard-handed slave drivers, pale into a frail softness when placed alongside the hotel chefs, who, far beyond your sight, oversee the preparation of the food which is placed before you by the waiter.

He is king of his realm, and one who would dare interfere with time-honored prerogatives would be taking a risk that no insurance company would care to underwrite. The chef is master of all that he surveys, and the minions of fabulously arrogant monarchs are among the freest-born compared to the dutiful ones who serve under your hotel chef.

HIS pharaphernalia of white coat and white hat may seem to some nothing but a uniform, but this attire is to him what the purple toga was to the Roman aristocrats of old. It is his badge of office, his crown and sceptre, and is quite as glorious as the braid and buttons seem in the eye of the recently graduated Naval midshipman.

A PHOTOGRAPHER recently made bold to ask one of our local czars of the kitchen to pose behind a handy counter. The detonation that followed almost knocked all the pans from the racks and sent the kettles rolling disconsolately onto the floor. The air became electrified, blue, and there was a crackling sound as of lightning slicing through dark clouds. Behind a counter? What sacrilege. What effrontery. What a deplorable ignorance. A chef behind a counter. As well might ask the dean of a hospital staff to join a medicine show. A chef, the photographer was told, in between expletives, never, never goes behind a counter. It would not only be unethical, but bordering on the immoral. A chef must always be snapped IN FRONT of the counter. So.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH tomorrow will begin publication of Trader Horn, a story of old Africa, by a quaint and unique gentleman named Alfred Aloysius Smith. Mr. Smith has grown wealthy from the telling of this story. He recently sailed for England and, before he left, he recalled that his wife was buried in Pittsburgh. He was not explicit and the fact that his name is Smith made tracing his Pittsburgh connections decidedly difficult.

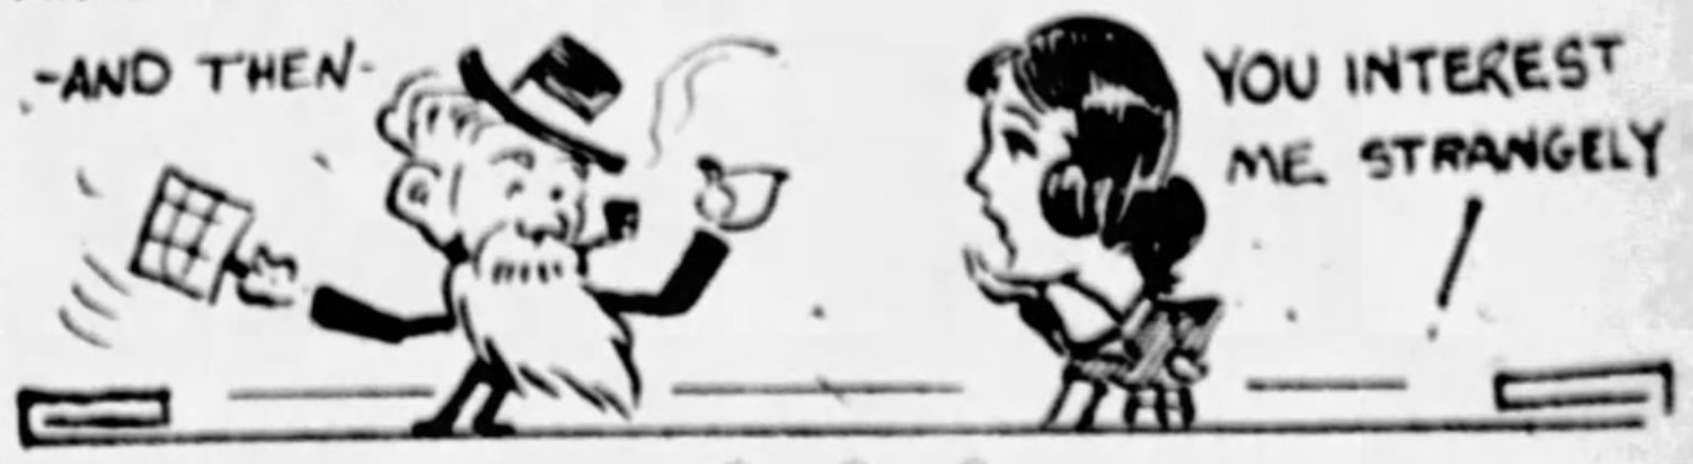
HOW fortune comes to some men! Mr. Smith was engaged in the art of selling waffle irons and such to the housekeepers when he ran into a writing woman who was taken by the narrative of his experiences he unfolded in the midst of his sales talk. It was so fascinating she induced him to recount minutely his life and then the story came out to be hailed as one of the sensations of the literary season. Mr. Smith is well past 70. From a sort of derelict house-to-house canvasser he has leaped into the literary spotlight. We recommend reading every line of his book: "Trader Horn."



* * *

THE story of Earl Carroll, former program boy at the Alvin Theater who became a well-known theatrical producer and became more widely-known as the result of a certain bat[illegible] episode in New York, is fairly well-known to Pittsburghers. It is also well-known that from time to time he makes trips to Pittsburgh to place flowers on the grave of his mother. It is nicer to know that, with no heralding, and quite secretly, in fact, he was here the other day to perform this act of tenderness.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait

by Elenore Meherin

The Doctor's Verdict, Stephanie Will Soon Be as Good as New

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good looking, charming and nineteen, falls in love with Saxon Rhodes, a young architect. Marza, her fascinating mother, warns her that idealists like Saxon make poor husbands. When he goes abroad to study, Jerry promises to wait for him. Jerry agrees to wait three years longer. She wonders whether Saxon loves her as completely as she loves him. Saxon's attention to Ora Pringle gives Jerry a pang of jealousy. They attend a week end party where things start to happen. She decides to give Saxon up. She discovers that Marza has another daughter of whose existence her husband had ben ignorant. Stephanie, Marza's daughter who was very ill, recovers and they go back home and Jerry finds life one trial after another with Saxon. Mary Eunice is to back Saxon to win in a contest. Jerry is jealous. Saxon tells Jerry he is paying his own way and once more she believes in him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WHAT'S your hurry?" said he, grabbing her hand as she turned to leave. Stick around a bit and let's chat, I've a minute. How are things going with you, Jerry?"

"Too quickly when it's silk stockings."

"And other things."

"Such as love in a bungalow?" said she, whistling a merry "Hello, Cutie!"

"Yes—such as love in London. I heard you and Hugh Hammond are engaged. Is that true?"

"Engaged! Why, my dear benighted Victorian, I should hope I know better than to clutter up the world with needless activity. Didn't you tell me a girl doesn't need to marry today? The game is here as well as his. She may play. She need not pay!"

"Not you!"

She gave him a taunting smile: "Is that tribute or insult?"

"Mere truth. Jerry, am I a complete fadeout?"

She stood at the draughting board where his papers were neatly arranged. He stood beside her, holding to her hand. His eyes against his browned skin were lighter, more intent and now fixed eagerly on her warm, singing mouth.

"Well," said she, pursing her lips and blowing upward a long, delicate curl of smoke: "It's this way, as Dorothy Parker puts it:

"'Woman wants monogamy;
"'Man delights in novelty.
"'Love is woman's moon and sun;
"'Man has other forms of fun.
"'Woman lives but in her lord;
"'Count to ten and man is bored.
"'With this, the gist and sum of it,
"'What earthly good can come of it?'"

"Clever, but what does it make me, Jerry?"

She laughed and pulled from him, quoting with a shrug:

"'Free, my love to seek your newer way;
"'I'll not be left in sorrow.
"'So long as I have yesterday,
"'Go take your damned tomorrow!'"

From the door she blew him a kiss.

"I'd like that better at closer range, Jerry!"

"Gone are the snows of yesteryear!" With her hand on the knob and her face averted, so that he, reaching her side, saw only her snug blue hat and the black curl trailing saucily up from her ear: "Saxon, good luck to you! I'm glad you're into it all on your own. I'm awfully thrilled about that."

"It's harder, but it's better."

"Yes—the triumph is complete!"

She felt happier than in all the months since their parting. She had seen him again as he was when she first loved him; when the dream of him—young, strong, beautiful, going onward, upward and onward, had filled and inspired her thought.

This dream was real. He was all that she fancied him or he could be all this. She believed now with the eternal faith of the woman in love that he would be this. And she was glad. Even though she lost him.

Marza was sitting at Stephanie's bed. She reached down and smoothed the rich, red-brown hair, twining a strand of it musingly. What a comfort to have this feat being close at last after all the troubled years.

What anguish, yet what joy, to find his eyes with all their laugh and beauty living in another. She never wearied of tracing the features of the father in those of the child. So like him—so achingly like him that he seemed lying here in the bed. It was Stephen lying here so gallantly and this was Stephen's hair.

Then she would be hurled back to the ghastly day of his dying . . . killed so terribly like that. For months she had not accepted it: had not believed him really gone. Never returning.

She would sit hours and hours reading to his child; talking to Stephanie, adoring her.

And Stephanie, hungry for information, listened burningly. "He was awfully bold and gay and you loved that much, Marza?"

"That much."

"And I'm part of it!"

They were a joy to each other.

"You'll miss petting me, mother, when I'm on my pins again!"

"Yes. But I had years to make up."

Stephanie lying flat on her back went off into blithe, winging dreams.

"But I shall so love being a wild and gay one like you and Jerry!"

Often Jerry coming into the room and sending Marza home from her long vigils would find Stephanie with this reckless beaming look.

It greeted her now as she came this happy day, to Stephanie's bed.

"We're all high and taighty;" said Stephanie, winking at Jerry and kissing Marza goodby. "For I've planned the seven vast and deadly sins I'll soon commit!"

The moment Marza was gone she turned fevered eyes to Jerry. "What the heck kept you! It's nearly six. Jerry—tonight we'll know! We'll be almost sure. Whether I walk or no!

"I didn't tell it to Marza for she'd be in anguish. She feels more than other people. But they've taken the X-rays. And by them they should be able to tell. Ten weeks! And in ten more—oh Lord!

"The doctor promised to bring me the plates—to let me look at them myself. But of course I've not the remotest doubt . . . not the remotest . . ."

The door opened. Stephanie turned white. She turned dark, blazing eyes to the doctor and gave him a panicky smile. She said bluffly—gallantly: "Well—what is it? Yea or nay!"

CHAPTER LI.

THE doctor took Stephanie's hand as though she were a very little girl.

He was a man of forty, slight of stature, with small but terrifically powerful hands and a roughly sculptured but noteworthy head. The eyes, which were large, dark and appraising, now smiled at Stephanie:

"You've no doubt, have you?"

"Of course not! But didn't you bring those plates!" she asked with accusation and a lurking terror. "Oh, you did! Well, hold them up, then!"

He obeyed the abrupt orders. For a moment Stephanie couldn't look. She was very pale with that panicky grin about the full, sweep lips.

"You wouldn't have brought them if they weren't good. I know that," she murmured nervously. "You'd have made some excuse. Oh—"

She reached up and seized the doctor's hand: "I will! I will! It's sure—isn't it?"

"It looks very nice, and if you just keep on like a good little girl, I think you should be fit as ever."

She lay staring into his eyes—her own filling. She said faintly, breathlessly: "You're an angel. A wonder! I knew Saint Stephen would cure me! For all the prayers I've said and all the bread I've promised!"

"Dirty—little—ingrate!"

Stephanie with a trembling gurgle hid her face. "But you'll get me a job, anyway? Have you looked up that laboratory appointment for me?"

"I'll get you a job. No hurry about that. Don't spoil things now with impatience."

Stephanie closed her eyes, not listening to the cautions and the temporizing. The stubby black lashes winked over madly joyous tears. Some day—somehow she would be herself again—light, free, swinging along in the sun and gaiety.

She opened them to find Jerry stooping down, laughing and kissing her: "We'll have gorgeous, riotous nights and days, lil thing!"

"You were never afraid for me, Jerry?"

"No—never—"

"In two weeks or three! It's almost too vastly fine to feature."

"Not in two weeks or three."

"Yes, they'll try me out then. They'll set me on my feet. Oh, I'll be glad—I'll be so raging glad to get out of here."

"I thought you liked it with all the nurses making a pet of you and all the dashing young internes coming in to cheer you up and chat a bit. You don't appreciate your heavenly opportunity."

"Don't I, though! I've dated them all up. They're pretty risque and sparkling, all right. And I try out captivating airs like yours and Marza's. Jerry, I wonder if I'm going to be attractive? Gee, I hope so! I'd just like to be so poisonously attractive that men would fall in a faint if I deigned to smile at them."

"All of us since Eve, Stephanie!"

"But I'm dying to get home, anyway. Jerry—how are you managing to pay for me? I don't really need both a night and a day nurse. But Marza will have it! The floor nurses would be glad to take care of me. And you'd save $12 every day. I wish you'd tell me how you're paying better than $140 a week. I'm sick worrying over it. I know I'm sinking you and Marza and you'll never get your head clear of it. Where is the money coming from? All you earn and all the rent wouldn't equal my expenses here."

"We took out a mortgage," said Jerry, with Marza's own balmy grace.

"And you're using the money direct to pay for me?"

"Yes."

Stephanie took Jerry's hand and toyed with the neat, velvety brown fingers. "Then the whole place is plastered over with mortgages, and if you want to sell it there'd be almost nothing clear. And if I don't hurry up and get cured, Marza'll about have to go out to work to pay the interest. What would happen if she got sick or if you did? You can't keep on taking out mortgages!"

"Well," said Jerry, shrugging blissfully, "there's always your grandfather and his mythical million to fall back on. Have you forgotten that?"

Stephanie's fingers tightened with a sudden iron grip on Jerry's. "What made you say that? Especially today. Jerry—quick—go over to that bureau drawer. There's a little jewel case. Something to show you."

Jerry brought a curious little ivory box carved with most delicate Chinese ladies.

"Did Marza give you this?" she asked softly. "I remember it when I was a little girl. I remember seeing Marza sitting with this box opened in her lap. She always closed it and put it away when I came in."

"My father gave it to her. Did you ever see this picture of him, Jerry? And this one of Marza and me? She gave it to me today."

Jerry took the three medallions framed in small, jeweled circles not much larger than a dollar. The face of a man about Saxon's age with laughing youth uppermost; the haunting face of a beautiful girl with troubled, passionately luring eyes—Marza in the charm and wonder of her twenties; and the face of a child about three—a little girl with merry lips and elfin sweetness. Three figures in the tragic romance.

Jerry, lost in fascination and stirred to her inmost fiber by this flash into Marza's thrilling and terrible secret, absently took a bit of paper that Stephanie now offered.

"Read that!"

She gazed at it and sat stiffly, tremblingly upright.

"Marza gave you this! She's known this all along?"

"She didn't mean to give it to me. Didn't know it was in the box. It was hidden in this envelope and dropped out. There are others of later date.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Mary

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl 17 years of age. I attend high school and I am permitted to go out with boys. One boy whom I like very well I have been going with for a long time. I also go with other boys. Recently this boy broke a date and went skating with some other fellows. He said he had promised them to go long ago and had been putting it off, so he went. When I asked him why he had not come to tell me he said that he had intended to but hadn't had time. We quarreled. I had his scarf, but I mailed it to him the next morning. I had a party the next night and I had asked him to invite several fellows whom I would have no opportunity to see. He did, but he himself did not come. Before we quarreled we had made a date for the latter part of the week. I got a note from him asking for his scarf, which he must not have received. I answered his note, saying that I had sent his scarf. I also said that I supposed he considered the date canceled, as I did. Now, Miss Gale, will you help me? Did I do right? I still like this boy and he always said he liked me. What shall I do about it? I am going out with another fellow on the night I was supposed to have the date with him, and I told him about it in my letter. Please answer my questions, Miss Gale, for I don't know what to do.

MARY.

He is in the wrong, Mary and he knows it. Let matters drift for a while and he will be glad to come back to you. He is too proud to apologize just now, but he will later.

Madge

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have written to you several times and have received wonderful advice. So I am writing to see if you can help me out in a case like this? I am a girl of 17 and have been keeping steady company with a fellow of 24, for almost eight months. Of course, I am very young, but he has lived a lot longer than I. Last week he gave me an engagement ring which I accepted because we both sure love one another. But my parents say he is too old for me. Of course, you understand he is old, but he is no shiek. He is a real plain fellow, doesn't drink or gamble as most fellows nowadays do. So that is my reason for taking the ring. We are planning to get married this June, but haven't said anything to my parents, because they tell me he is too old for me. So, Miss Gale, I am so undecided whether we should leave town and get married or tell my parents. I'm afraid they won't give consent.

MADGE.

You are too young to marry anyone, my dear. Wait for a couple of years, and you will be more sure of yourself. Your parents, too, will be more inclined to give their consent then.

Jack

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your columns, and find them both interesting and educational. If I may be permitted, I would like to make a few comments upon some of the letters which I have read. Many of the girls seem to think that there are very few gentlemen. A common saying among women is that all men are alike. This may be interpreted in many ways, but there are a few boys or men, if I may call them such, that still have their ideals, and have not been weak enough to let women lower them. How easy it is for a woman to determine what kind of a man she wishes to make out of him! I have been observing the actions of both women and men with much delight as well as sorrow. One of the many things that I hate to see is a girl smoking in public. It is bad enough to observe the petting, but when it comes to smoking, it seems a pity for women to try to do what men are doing. I do not object to girls' smoking, provided they smoke privately, but how many girls really smoke privately, or in the eyes of their parents? Smoking with men is a habit, and it is started either in association with a crowd that smokes, or for pastime in early youth. It is absolutely unnecessary for men to smoke if they have strong enough will power, and this can be cultivated. Many of the girls think that they have to be of the "fast type" to keep company, or attract the opposite sex, but in my opinion this attitude is very regrettable. When a boy first goes out with a girl, he tries to act like a gentleman until the girl comments upon how slow he is. The boy is naturally encouraged to predominate, because man dislikes women to be superior to him. This is only a few of the various way by which many a man has been led to the wrong road. Thus it seems that will power and high ideals are the determinants in both men and women's lives. I have had plenty of experience to know about the actions of girls and boys, both public and privately. By public and privately, I mean at public and private dances, theaters, and parties. So far I have been disappointed with the attitude taken, but I am hoping for the good. Please do not understand that I think a gentleman is perfect in all ways, or is one who stays home, reads books and has very little to do with sports. A real man is one who is broad-minded, studious, conscientious, lover of sports, and who has high ideals accompanied by will power. The same holds true for a lady. Your comments upon this letter will be greatly appreciated.

JACK.

My only comment is to congratulate you on your viewpoint on life, Jack.

Beatrice

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been a silent reader of your column for about a year. I have also written to you before but under a different name. I haven't any troubles but I am in love and I am being loved. I am only 18 year I have been going with this fellow for a year now. We have confessed our love for each other. Do you think I am too young to have true love? I believe you in the three questions much discussed in your department.

BEATRICE.

I think you are too young to be sure of your love, my dear. Perhaps this feeling between you and the boy may develop into true and lasting love, but you cannot be so sure at your age. I am glad you agree with me about petting and drinking.

Patsy and Lulu

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are readers of your column and would like to have some of your wonderful advice. We are 18 and 19, respectively. We met two young men about three months ago. They are 10 years our senior and fell deeply in love. We would like to know if they are too old for us to go out with. Our parents do not allow us to keep company with boys. Should we meet them away from home? We agree with you on the kissing question, as we do not believe in kissing and petting.

PATSY AND LULU.

Since you are not permitted to go out with any boys, why do you worry about these? Don't meet them or anyone else away from home. It cheapens you very much.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil—you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All druggists.

Lillian and Madge Discuss Philip Veritzen's Interest in Eleanor Lincoln

LILLIAN flashed an odd look at me as I voiced the suggestion that Philip Veritzen's violent and ridiculous objection to Eleanor Lincoln's posing for Dicky's drawings might be explained by the theory that he had fallen in love with her.

"My dear infant," she drawled, "you're surely not naive enough to believe that, and if you don't believe it, you surely do not think you can pull any well-known sheep fleece over my eyes, do you?"

I flushed hotly, for her inference was plain. Mercilessly she made it unmistakable.

"Personally, I don't think it is possible for old Phil to 'fall in love' with anybody other than himself," she said. "But for the last few months he's been staging a very realistic imitation of the emotion which makes the world go round—so realistic that I think he's even deceiving himself. And you know as well as I do that the lady is older than Eleanor Lincoln, equally as beautiful, and far more brilliant than our young neighbor of The Larches. To spare your blushes I won't name her, but if you really want a good look at her, gaze into your mirror and spare me any more twaddle on the supposition that Phil's interest in Miss Lincoln is an amorous one. But you can mark down one thing in your card index. The astute Mr. Veritzen knows who the young woman is. He wasn't sure until tonight. Indeed, when he first saw her he was completely at sea, because he'd made up his mind before he came here, that he knew who she was, and there was something in her looks which threw him completely off the track. He got back on, though, without much delay. You saw that queer, mirthful, suddenly comprehending expression come into his face, didn't you?"

She turned her eyes upon me at the last question. She had kept them carefully averted as she ruthlessly unfolded her permise that my employer had no romantic interest in Eleanor Lincoln, but fancied himself in love with me. I knew that she purposely had given me time to recover from the embarrassment, occasioned by her thrust, and I was glad to be able to answer her question with apparent nonchalance.

"Yes, I saw it," I answered, "and I agree with you that he knows who she is. I think Dicky also has a very good idea of her identity."

"What makes you think so?" she asked quickly, and I related to her Dicky's queer telephoned conversation to me when he had asked me to invite Miss Lincoln to my welcome home dinner for Lillian and Marion.

"You know, don't you," I added, "that if it had not been for that request I never would have had those strangers here at our dinner for you?"

"What difference did it make?" she argued sagely. "You had to have Phil Veritzen anyway—you couldn't get out of it when he offered to motor Marion and me down, and that effectually spoiled the strictly family party. Two additional guests didn't matter in the least."

"No, I suppose not," I answered dubiously. "But what a muddle it all is. And to complicate matters—"

I broke off abruptly, reluctant to discuss, even with Lillian, the difficulties I was foreseeing from Dicky's unmistakable and growing jealousy of Philip Veritzen.

Forbes

Stocks Again Skyrocket; Morgan Taking Life Easy.

—By B. C. FORBES—

WALL STREET still goes on its merry way. The speculative bulls have become more daring than ever. When a stock like U. S. Steel opens about $4 a share above its previous close, the artificial character of the gambling becomes starkly apparent. Anyone who imagines that America's ablest and largest investors are loading up with stocks at these unprecedently high prices knows little about the ways of such investors. If they had made it a practice to buy at unparalleled prices they would have gone broke.

The rather definite indications are that unloading has been taking place from very important quarters. A large part of the proceeds doubtless is going into high-grade bonds. If and when a drastic collapse comes in the stock market, these heavyweight investors, you can depend upon it, will be in a position to jump in and make very heavy purchases.

The superficial notion that the stock market is never going to experience another violent collapse is the most elementary nonsense. It is illogical, too, to suppose that the Federal Reserve authorities will be satisfied to stand by and see brokers' loans expand abnormally, without an effort being made to check the dangerous drift. They know little who scoff at the power of the Reserve authorities to put a damper on reckless speculation.

J. P. MORGAN, unlike his father, is not a glutton for incessant work. The present head of the world's most powerful international banking house believes in blending plenty of leisure and recreation with business. He spends several months of each year in Europe, where he is holidaying now, although he always keeps in touch with what is going on at headquarters in New York as well as in London and Paris, where there are active Morgan offices.

The vitality exhibited by the 88-year-old Rockefeller, and his capacity to enjoy life at this advanced age, are making an impression upon the minds of some of our financial and business giants. They are going in more for respite from the daily grind. This is one reason why more heads of corporations are naming youngish men as president while they themselves step up to the less arduous position of chairman.

George F. Baker took to golf at 70 and in the last 18 years has indulged in an increasing measure of relaxation.

After all, what does it profit a man if he roll up $10,000,000 or $100,000,000 if he prematurely kills himself in the process?

BENJAMIN WINTER, the New York real estate wizard, who incorporated himself last November and permitted friends to purchase shares of his stock, reports profits for three and one-half months of fully $275,000. Every notably successful man is besieged by his friends to invest money for them. Usually it proves thankless. Mr. Winter's solution probably will be adopted by others.

A CARGO of 18,000,000 fresh eggs is on its way from the Pacific coast to Buenos Aires on a Blue Star steamer, owned by Vestey Brothers, two ex-British workmen who are now multi-millionaires—one is Lord William Vestey, the other Sir Edmund Vestey. They plan a regular steamship service between these two points, supplied by six vessels.

This monster shipment of eggs, the first of its kind, is consigned to the Buenos Aires house of L. Van Bokkelen, who distributes enormous quantities of American products throughout South America. Walter Van Bokkelen, the United States head of the house, has returned to New York after superintending the buying and handling of the novel cargo in the Northwest and in California. A special egg train from Petaluma, Cal., to the ship's side in San Francisco for this maiden voyage was the occasion of quite a ceremony.

Heretofore, eggs from this country to South America moved from Atlantic ports. Freight is saved by shipping from the nearby Pacific coast ports. The Vesteys—who figured prominently in the recent titanic struggle among packers for supremacy in the South America-London trade—plan to develop large shipments of fruit and other products by their new Pacific Coast-South American line. Their career matches that of any American.

IS THIS a new wrinkle in salesmanship? The Crosley Radio Corporation, headed by one of the youngest business leaders in America, announces that it is willing to install a radio in your home, absolutely free, for a thorough test. If you like it you keep it, if you don't out it goes.

Competition in most lines assuredly is reaching new heights these days.

New York Clearing House.

NEW YORK, April 14 (INS.)—Clearing house statement: Exchanges, $1,463,000,000; balances, $131,000,000; Federal Reserve Bank's credit balance, $119,000,000.

STOCK MARKET ENTHUSIASM CHILLED

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Confused price movements characterized today's brief session of the market, pronounced heaviness of many of the industrial shares being offset by a resumption of aggressive buying in pool specialties, a score of which reached new high ground. Trading was not quite as brisk as in the preceding days of the week.

Week-end profit-taking and uneasiness over the credit situation were the principal factors in the selling movement. Wall Street again began to express concern over the possibility of another increase in Federal Reserve re-discount rates, due to the recent stiffening of time money and bankers' acceptances, further exports of gold and increasing commercial demands for funds.

An opening break of five points in General Motors instead of the expected big opening at a new high, helped to chill speculative enthusiasm. Selling pressure was quite pronounced against U. S. Steel common, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Radio and some of the other recent favorites.

The closing was heavy. Total sales approximated 1,750,000 shares.

MASSACHUSETTS WOMAN HELD IN AUTO WRECK

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 14.—Pending a hearing and settlement of damages, Mrs. Henry A. Wotherspoon, 57, of Malden, Mass., is being held here by authorities in connection with an automobile accident near West Alexander, in which Fred Tustin, 32, and Fred McGlumphy, 27, both of West Alexander, were injured, Tustin seriously. Mrs. Wotherspoon's car skidded after passing a bus and struck the machine in which the two men were riding.

DIXIE GAS PFD. AT NEW TOP

Moderate offerings of Standard Sanitary Manufacturing forced the price of the shares back on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but, after receding to the level at which it started the week, the stock met good support and all sales were absorbed easily.

There was no explanation of the selling in Standard, but it was thought probable that some of the traders were lightening their lines in anticipation of the first quarter's report, which is expected to reflect the rather slow business of the cold months. Dividend expectations on the new stock do not run above a $2 annual basis, which would be equal to $6 on the old shares which were split three-for-one.

Dixie Gas and Utilities preferred jumped sharply in the early dealings, moving up 3 points between sales as buyers bid for the rapidly diminishing supply of stock available under the 100-mark. Other fuels were quiet and quotations were nominal.

A 500-share block of Consolidated Ice came into the market at 25½, off ½ from the previous price and down a point from the top figure of the recent flurry.

Armstrong Cork shares were quiet, but a sale of 15,446 "rights" at $3 each provided a feature of the day's dealings. Six "rights" give the holder the privilege of purchasing one share of the stock at $40 a share.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 14.—All deliveries of wheat rose today to the highest prices yet this season, with May going above $1.53 for the first time. Active buying resulted from continued lack of rain southwest, where needed and from reports of high winds. Opening ½c to 2c higher, wheat later showed additional gains. Corn, oats and provisions were also firmer, with corn starting ⅛ to ⅝@1c up and subsequently strengthening a little more.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Taplin Pushes Merger Fight.

The "Fifth System" plans of F. E. Taplin, of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, as opposed to the "four-party plan" of the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and Nickel Plate lines, were discussed during final arguments before the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday. C. F. Taplin, chief counsel for Pittsburgh and West Virginia, argued in favor of the road's plan to construct a 38-mile extension of its line between Cochrans Mills and Connellsville, Pa. He explained the proposed extension would open a gateway on the east for Pittsburgh and West Virginia traffic via the Western Maryland as well as to the South over the same road through Baltimore.

Otis Steel at 100 Per Cent.

Otis Steel Company reports March earnings were $515,612 after expenses, etc., but before depreciation and federal taxes. This is a new high monthly record and compares with $350,300 in February and $395,063 in March, 1927. President E. J. Kulas reports the plant is operating at 100 per cent.

Bullish on Anaconda.

Hornblower & Weeks says: "Despite the advance in Anaconda we believe current developments are more important marketwise than when we earlier recommended this issue. Consequently, we suggest further accumulation while large interests are buying it under 70. Recent developments indicate that the accumulation in Anaconda has not been completed. The stock is being taken freely while it is available here through the conversion of bonds. It is being bought not for speculative purposes but we understand to the investment belief that Anaconda, representing, as certain purchasers have described it, "the General Motors of the copper industry," should sell permanently on a much higher basis. In consequence, we believe that hundreds of thousands of shares of stock will be taken out of the market and sometime later, when publication of the fact that big interests have accumulated the stock is made, we will witness the same phenomena that characterized the movements in Radio, Westinghouse, General Motors and Montgomery Ward."

U. S. to Withdraw $96,902,300.

The Treasury will withdraw $96,902,300 from depository institutions throughout the country on April 16. This is the largest government withdrawal in some time, and is probably due in part to the payment of $150,000,000 interest on Liberty Loan 4s, to be made at that time.

Sheet Prices Yielding.

The decline of $2 a ton in prices of full finished steel sheets is spreading to other grades in the Youngstown area, common grades being quoted in some instances as low as 2.85 cents a pound, against 2.90 cents, although the more common market is 2.90 cents. Blue annealed sheets are firmest at 2.10 cents, but prices down to 2 cents are developing. Galvanized sheets are quoted $2 a ton below the nominal market of 3.75 cents a pound.

Eaton Axle Profits Up.

First quarter profit of Eaton Axle and Spring rose to $314,000 after charges, but before federal taxes, from $274,859 in the first quarter last year. The net income is equal to $1.26 a share on the 250,000 shares, against 40 cents a share in the last previous quarter and $1.10 a share in the March, 1927, quarter.

Weather Influences Trade.

Bradstreet's Weekly Trade Review says: "The post-holiday lull, coupled with the return of inclement weather in many areas, has made for a reduction in retail buying, while wholesale and jobbing business has also quieted somewhat. Rains or snows have affected country roads and temporarily slowed down farm work. Returns for March at retail, embracing chain-store, department stores sales and mail-order distribution, point to a good distribution by the first-mentioned stores, but to only moderate increases by the latter two, which a year ago were showing actual decreases from the first quarter of 1926. Also the earlier date of Easter makes for some irregularities, which it will require later returns to adequately measure. A conspicuous exception to the rather irregular reports as to retail trade this week, however, is found in some leading automobile centers, which report the most active employment and the best buying for March and early April since 1926. Industry, especially in lines hitherto noting activity, as for instance, steel making, automobile, leather and shoe manufacturing, and building seems to make a rather more animated showing than does trade."

Reliance Life Insurance.

An increase of 9.3 per cent in paid life business over the first quarter of 1927 is reported by the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh for the first quarter of this year. Paid volume of life insurance for the first three months this year was $15,036,852 as compared with $13,751,528 for the same period last year. In written business, the first three months this year produced $21,097,644 as compared with $23,748,427 for the same period last year. Life insurance in force increased $6,077,982 during the first quarter this year. Totals of insurance in force March 31 are: Life, $346,463,735; accident, $172,935,377, and health, $368,083.75. In March 45 leading agents in the Western Pennsylvania department with headquarters at Pittsburgh, wrote $1,128,000 life business, ranging from $10,000 to $101,000 per man. There were 402 sales made in this department, 80 of which were on a new juvenile policy recently developed by the company.

First Quarter Insolvencies.

In the insolvency statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. for both March and the first quarter, there is a contrast between the larger number of commercial failures and the smaller liabilities, in comparison with the returns for last year. With a total of 2,236, the March defaults in the United States are 4.3 per cent in excess of the 2,143 insolvencies for that period of 1927, while last month's indebtedness of $54,814,145 is 5.3 per cent below the $57,890,905 of the earlier year. In no other month since that time, however, have the present liabilities been equaled, while the number of failures last month is the highest for March since 1922, when 2,463 defaults were reported. The maximum indebtedness for March was established in 1925, at about $97,600,000; in 1922 the amount approximated $71,600,000, and in 1921 it was $67,400,000.

American Tel. & Tel.

American Telephone and Telegraph Company net income of $33,474,925 for the March quarter, after taxes and interest, is equal to $3.03 a share on 11,034,154 shares, against $31,787,681, or $2.95 a share on 10,788,429 shares in the 1927 quarter.

S. S. Kresge Company.

March quarter net income of S. S. Kresge Company was $2,939,279, equal after preferred dividends to 97 cents a share on the common, as against net of $2,508,618, or 77 cents a share in the March, 1927, quarter.

International Nickel.

International Nickel's earnings for March quarter are believed to have been somewhat larger than 1927, thus making a new high record for the period. In its first three months last year net income totaled $1,407,708, after all reserves, equal after preferred dividends, to 76 cents a share on 1,673,384 common shares. This was the best showing for any initial three months in recent years.

FIRE SUSPECTS' CASE HINGING ON OLD PLEA

On a plea of former acquittal—an ancient plea seldom invoked—rested much of the argument yesterday in Criminal Court on a motion for a new trial for Meyer Letwin of Harvard street and Harry Frank of Webster avenue. They were convicted in January of conspiracy and arson. They were accused of attempting to set fire to the millinery store of Mrs. Carrie M. Deverts, East Ohio street, last July 21, after placing increased insurance.

On their first trial the jury was discharged on Sunday, December 18, after out 18 hours' deliberation. Judge James R. Macfarlane telephoned the discharge order because of the illness of a woman juror. The plea of former acquittal was based on the fact that court was not convened and that the proceeding was not a matter of record.

The arguments were heard by Judge J. Frank Graff of Kittanning, trial judge, and Judges Joseph M. Swearingen and Harry H. Rowand. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner was opposed in the arguments by Attorneys William H. Coleman and Louis Little, defense counsel.

TO AWARD SPAN WORK IN JUNE

Contracts for the proposed East Street Bridge, which would connect Charles and Essen streets, will be awarded in June, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang announced after a conference with County Director of Public Works Norman Brown. Lang estimated the cost at $900,000.

Due in Two Jails, Awaits Ruling in Third

Fred Craven, 337, of Cliff street, McKeesport, is in the county jail waiting to start a sentence of 20 to 40 years in the penitentiary while the authorities are trying to determine whether a workhouse sentence shall take precedence. He had previously been sentenced to the workhouse for 30 days by Judge Richard J. Kennedy in County court on a charge of deserting his wife. Judge Kennedy insists the workhouse sentence shall be served first, while Warden John McNeil planned to send his prisoner to the penitentiary immediately on the advice of other jurists.

Craven was sentenced for four robberies and also was accused of larceny and passing bad checks.

ASKS $25,000 FOR TROLLEY ACCIDENT

Suit for $25,000 damages was filed by Mrs. Henry D. Bendix against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. She claims she was permanently injured when dragged by a car which she attempted to board at Forbes and Hooper streets on November 2, 1926.

MURDER HUNT CENTERS ON 'PICKHANDLE SLIM'

A Negro known as "Pickhandle Slim" is being sought today by police as a result of the shooting to death yesterday of Frank Maynard, 32, a Negro, of 3141 Griffiths street, near Maynard's home. The cause of the shooting was not determined.

CONSTABLE DECIDES NOT TO CLOSE PARK SUNDAYS

Kennywood Park will be saved for the public as a Sunday recreation center. Friends of Constable A. W. Batchen of Mifflin township have persuaded him not to try to close the park on the Sabbath, to arrest any operators and attendants for violating the Sunday laws. This was admitted last night by Constable Batchen. Several times recently he had announced his intention to close the park Sundays.

$300,000 USED IN EAST END TRADE

Z. L. Eisner sold for Zachary E. Hallow to A. Leo Weil a four-story fire-proof building at the corner of Bennott street and Pennant place, opposite Forbes Field. The lot fronts 81 feet on Bennott street and 110 feet on Pennant place. Mr. Hallow has taken a long term lease on the premises.

16 LEFT IN TEST AS SPEAKERS

Sixty-four students took part in the semi-finals for Duquesne University High School public speaking contest late yesterday in the university auditorium. Sixteen were selected to compete for the medals offered the winners.

Those surviving the elimination are: Freshmen, Roy Getty, Edward Rowan, William Rennekamp and Joseph Vogel; sophomores, Cyril Brain, Regis Freund, Charles Hayes and William Purcell; juniors, Thomas Dunn, Adolph Hokamp, Andrew Maloney and John K. Riddle, and seniors, William Connare, William Daly, Edward Przewieszkowski and Stanley Zolnierzak.

Finals for the first, second and third year groups will be held April 29, and for the fourth year body on May 6. Both contests, open to the public, will be held in the university theater.

3 ROBBERS GET LONG TERMS

Convicted on three charges of robbery, Joe Ramsey and Walter Thomas, Negroes, were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment by Judge H. H. Rowand. Ramsey was sent to serve from 17 to 34 years and Thomas 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary.

Theodore Lippzer, of Duquesne, member of a gang which robbed numerous Monongahela valley stores, pleaded guilty to two charges of robbery and was sentenced to serve from 5 to 10 years in the workhouse.

HOLD WIFE IN MATE'S DEATH

A coroner's jury held Mrs. Helen Valenczys, 50, on a charge of murder as a result of the death of her husband, Michael Valenczys, 56, who was shot in the abdomen in his home in O'Hara township late Sunday. His wife said he had committed suicide. Valenczys, in a dying statement, accused her of the shooting.

$2,500 GIFT IS LEFT MONONGAHELA CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 14.—Bequests were made to religious organizations by Davis M. Swickard of Monongahela, who died recently in Florida. He left $2,500 to the First Church of Christ of Monongahela, and $1,000 to the Home Missionary Society. He left an estate valued at $56,500.

MAN WHO FIRED HOME HELD FOR MIND TEST

Peter Jonko, 34, of 144 Morningside avenue, Wilmerding, who on Tuesday is alleged to have set fire to his home, yesterday was committed to jail pending mental examination. When arrested he readily admitted firing his home and was to have pleaded guilty.

Official—Pittsburgh 82

Notice is hereby given that ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in Council of the City of Pittsburgh on February 14, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 481.

AN ORDINANCE widening Forbes street in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 193.23 feet west of the westerly line of McDevitt place to McDevitt place and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Forbes street in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 193.23 feet west of the westerly line of McDevitt place to McDevitt place be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes the following described property, to-wit:

Beginning at a point on the present southerly line of Forbes street distant 193.23 feet west along the present southerly line of Forbes street, from the westerly line of McDevitt place; thence extending eastwardly along the present southerly line of Forbes street 193.22 feet to the westerly line of McDevitt place; thence southwardly along the westerly line of McDevitt place 14 feet to a point; thence westwardly parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 14 feet south of the present southerly line of Forbes street 193.20 feet to a point; thence northwardly perpendicular to the last above mentioned course 14 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Forbes street in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh from a point 193.23 feet west of the westerly line of McDevitt place to McDevitt place to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinance, copies of which are published herewith, were introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on April 2nd, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

Bill No. 1037.

AN ORDINANCE widening Irvine street in the 15th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Greenfield avenue to a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Irvine street in the 15th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Greenfield avenue to a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. The westerly line shall begin on the southerly line of Greenfield avenue 60.0 feet wide at a point distant north 56° 42' 00" east 142.24 feet along the southerly line of Greenfield avenue 60.0 feet wide, from the westerly five foot line of Second avenue, being at the intersection of the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by Ordinance No. 526, approved November 29, 1921, and the southerly line of Greenfield avenue 60.0 feet wide; thence extending south 29° 42' 00" east 162.6 feet more or less along the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by said ordinance to the westerly line of Irvine street 30.0 feet wide as dedicated by Ordinance No. 289, approved February 25, 1895; thence along the westerly line of Irvine street as dedicated by the said ordinance south 13° 46' 00" east 33.0 feet, more or less, to the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; thence along the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in a southerly direction for a distance of 798.0 feet, more or less, to the dividing line between properties of the National Tube Company and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; thence along the said dividing line in an easterly direction 7.0 feet, more or less, to the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by the aforesaid ordinance No. 526, approved November 29, 1921; thence along the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by the said ordinance south 29° 42' 00" east 347.0 feet, more or less, to an angle point in the same; thence continuing along the same south 25° 10' 50" east 273 feet, more or less, to an intersection with the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in a southerly direction for the distance of 348.0 feet, more or less, to an intersection with the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by Ordinance No. 526, approved November 29, 1921; thence continuing along the westerly line of Irvine street as widened by said ordinance south 25° 10' 50" east 75.0 feet, more or less, to an angle in the same; thence continuing along the same south 21° 47' 20" east 199.0 feet, more or less, to the dividing line between properties now or late of Albert Kern and H. Friedman, said dividing line being at the southerly extremity of Irvine street as widened by Ordinance No. 526, approved November 29, 1921; thence along the westerly line of Irvine street as opened by Ordinance No. 521, approved November 29, 1921, south 21° 47' 20" east 482.0 feet, more or less, to the northerly line of the Marion Place Plan of Lots No. 2 of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book Volume 19, page 175, said northerly line of the Marion Place Plan of Lots No. 2 being at the southerly extremity of Irvine street as opened by Ordinance No. 521, approved November 29, 1921; thence in a westerly direction along the northerly line of the Marion Place Plan of Lots No. 2, 9.0 feet, more or less, to the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; thence in a southerly direction along the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for a distance of 1,597.0 feet, more or less, to a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Irvine street in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Greenfield avenue to a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

BILL NO. 1038.

AN ORDINANCE widening Willock street in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots to Minden street, changing the name thereof to Irvine street and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Willock street in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots to Minden street be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width so that the street as widened shall lie between the following described lines:

The easterly line shall begin at a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book Volume 10, page 52, said point of beginning being north 68° 11' 40" east 169.88 feet from the westerly five-foot line of Second avenue as measured perpendicular to the same, tangency to the following described arc at said point of beginning having a bearing of south 20° 32' 10" east; thence extending in a southerly direction by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 8649.6 feet and a central angle of 2° 26' 50" for a distance of 369.44 feet to a point of compound curve; thence continuing in a southerly direction by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 898.0 feet and a central angle of 11° 40' 10" for the distance of 182.90 feet to an intersection with the northerly line of Minden street, said intersection being north 72° 26' 10" east 123.96 feet along the northerly line of Minden street from the westerly five foot line of Second avenue.

The westerly line shall begin at a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the intersection of the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots and the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, said point of beginning being 76.0 feet more or less east of the westerly five feet line of Second Avenue as measured perpendicular to the same; thence extending in a southerly direction along the easterly line of the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company a distance of 494.0 feet more or less to an intersection with a line parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 43.0 feet east of the westerly five foot line of Second avenue; thence in an easterly direction perpendicular to Second avenue 12.0 feet to a point; thence in a southerly direction along the line parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 55.0 feet east of the westerly five foot line of Second avenue a distance of 50.0 feet more or less to the northerly line of Minden street.

SECTION 2. The name of Willock street as so widened, shall be and the same is hereby changed to Irvine street.

SECTION 3. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Willock street in the 15th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 210.54 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street at the northerly line of the James H. Willock's Plan of Lots to Minden street to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 4. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 5. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

BUGS BAER Says

THE Illinois election officials are still busy with their automatic fountain pens and hammerless lead pencils.

A canvass of the municipal hospitals indicated that some were defeated, some were victorious, but all were scared.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The candidates had sixteen votes removed from their backs, legs and arms.

There was only one campaign speech and the speaker ran out of ammunition while talking.

He was broadcasting from a bombproof umbrella stand but forgot to plug up the keyhole.

He led a big parade out of Chicago in an effort to prove that the Australian ballot system is healthier than the Illinois voting habit.

If this election was merely a preamble to the national campaign we will have to place our X in the circle denoting a European trip for timid voters whose birthstones are yellow diamonds.

We had intended to vote the curly Democratic ticket, but now we will wait until we discover which party is shooting the straightest.

9—Development of river transportation.

Community Chest Plan Moves Toward Final Step

Furtherance of the community chest plan for Pittsburgh charities is noted in the election of men and women in whom the public has confidence as officers of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh. Howard Heinz has been elected president and Richard K. Mellon treasurer. Twenty-three directors have been named, the board including well-known men and women, who also will serve as delegates-at-large in the general meetings of the fund. Delegates also have been invited, one each from various civic organizations.

With a working body thus organized, the way is open to perfect plans for the first campaign for funds, to be held in November. Twenty-three philanthropic and social agencies already are members of the fund, and by the time the campaign is begun all important charitable organizations should belong to it.

The community chest, which has been found to be the ideal way of financing organized charities in other cities, is worthy of extensive and exhaustive trial, and its promoters appear to be taking warranted care to see that it is established on a firm foundation. They should be commended for their zeal and supported in their work.

It is hoped that charity organizations that have not affiliated with the fund will do so, inasmuch as the public has long been ''sold'' on the community chest idea and it is not likely to look with favor on a divided effort to raise money for charity after the fund becomes financially operative.

Nature a Scofflaw?

Home-brew information of the most interesting type is being disseminated by prohibition officials in their reports of what they find.

For example, some of the sleuths in Southern Florida report a recipe which worries them.

A hole is bored in a cocoanut. No milk is allowed to leak out, but two teaspoonfuls of brown sugar are inserted, and the hole plugged with a cork. The result, after three weeks, is a large glassful of cocoa whisky. Of course, a flock of cocoanuts would soon make a good deal more than this amount.

The prohibition experiment is largely a question as to whether notions can be substituted for facts. Thus far in human history such experiments have not been successful.

Alcohol is a thing. Prohibition is an idea. European observers tell us that we are largely engaged in attempting definitely to substitute what we would like to be and what we would like to think for what actually is.

The Heroin School
It Makes Criminals and Holds Them

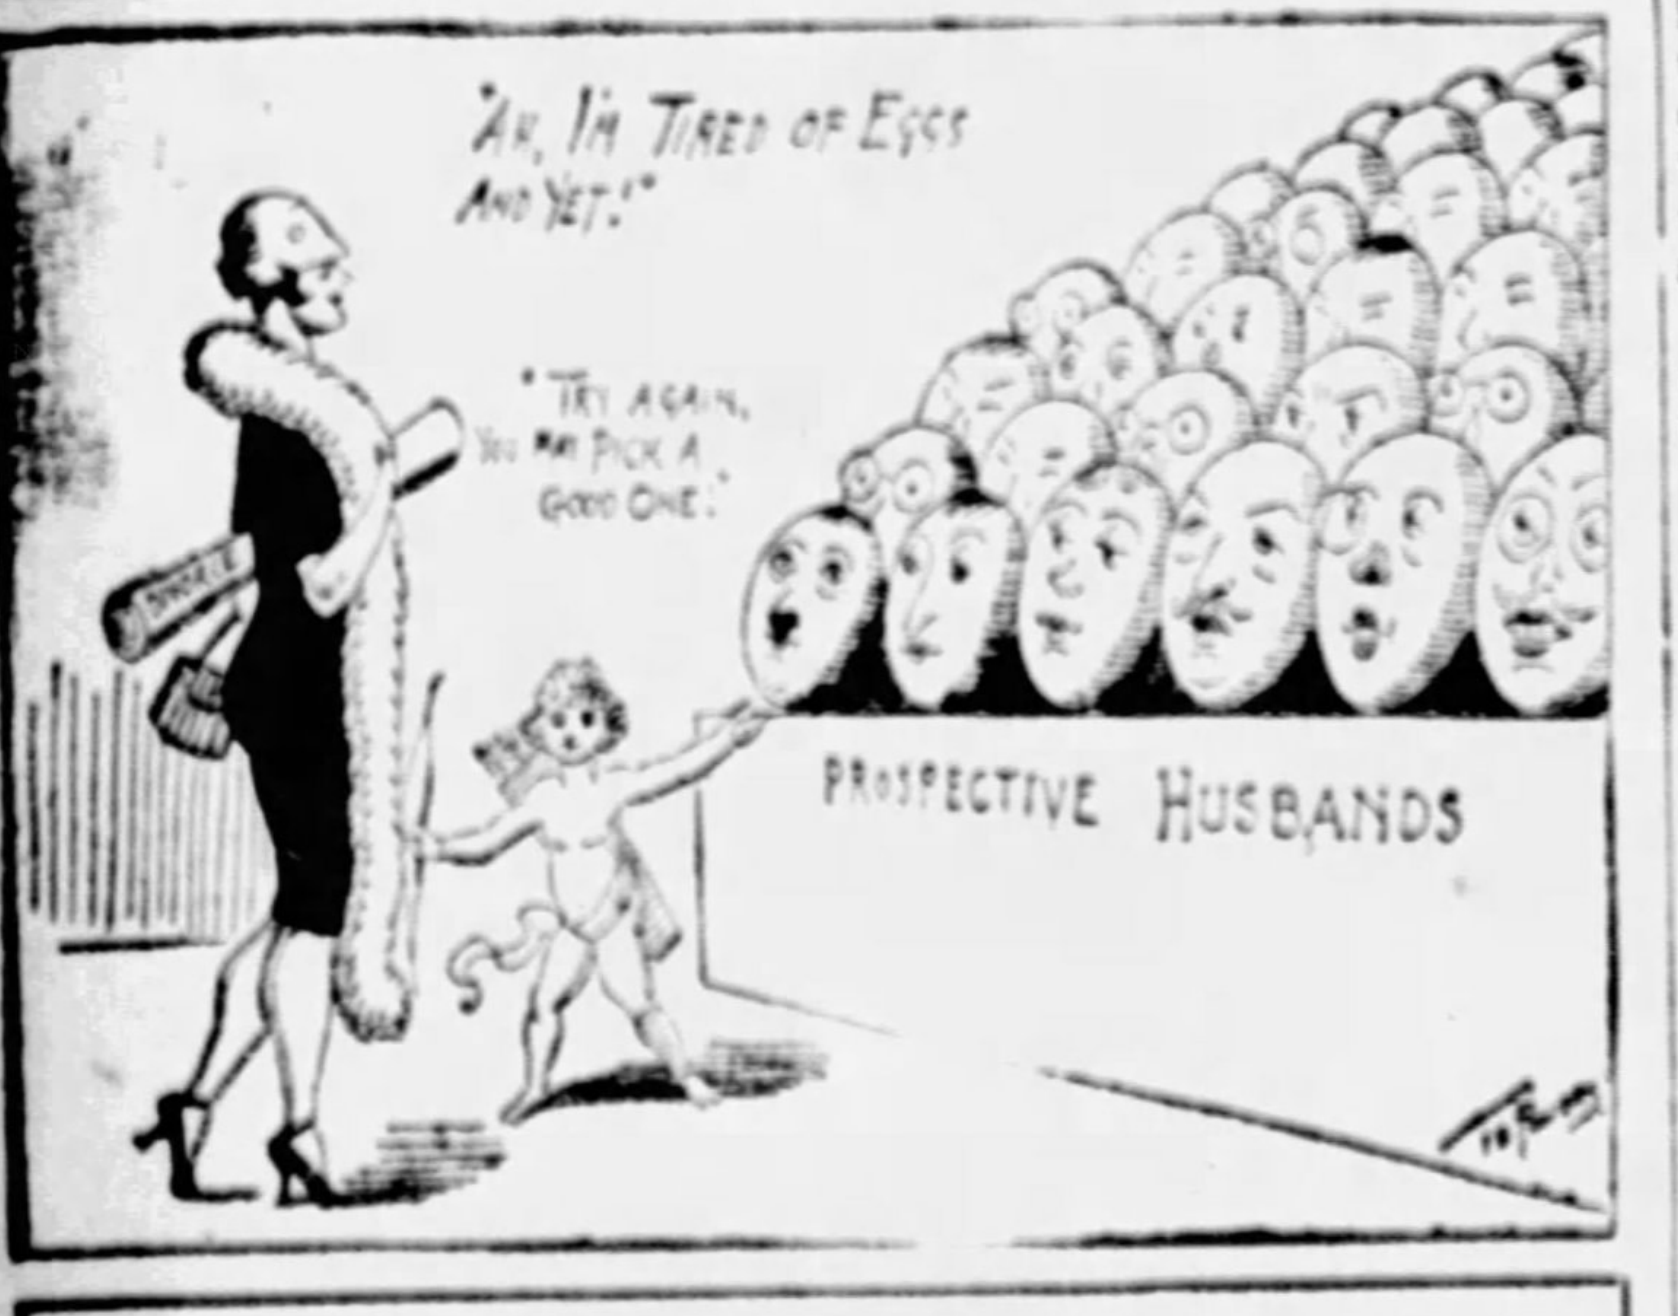
One week each year is devoted to a fight against the drug habit that ruins tens of thousands and is responsible for a great deal of the crime wave. Mere protest does little good.

Many doctors think that modification of the Volstead law would be the best way of fighting the drug habit. But perhaps it would not.

This is certain, the drug heroin is used in making criminals of boys. It is said that ten ounces of heroin would answer legitimate medical purposes of a city with a million population. And such a city uses 10,000 ounces of it.

''Boss criminals'' make addicts of boys in their teens. The boys become criminals and obey orders, carry out holdups and killing if necessary. They fear the loss of their drug more than the electric chair or noose.

The Egg Season
Dress Up, Stand Straight, Look Your Best



"AH, I'M TIRED OF EGGS AND YET!"
"TRY AGAIN, YOU MAY PICK A GOOD ONE."
PROSPECTIVE HUSBANDS

TRY AGAIN, YOUNG LADY.

This picture by our genius Thomas E. Powers reminds young ladies with divorce certificates of the old saying, ''If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.''

Some ''eggs'' (that seems to be the modern slang for young gentlemen) might be better. Some might be worse.

But such as they are, Cupid reminds the young lady that she must take them or leave them. Pagan gods no longer come to wed the daughters of men, and those daughters must be satisfied with some other daughter's brother.

As a matter of fact, one ''egg'' is very much like another. True philosophy in life consists in picking your ''egg'' with some care, then making the best of the ''egg'' you select.

Often the ''egg'' rejected by a first wife becomes the cornerstone of another and happy household.

There is good in all eggs and in all men. The thing is to find it, cultivate it and improve it.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Lure of the Poles

THE earth has a psychical attraction that draws men's thoughts poleward as its magnetism draws the needle. Mystical-minded persons might say that this phenomenon harks back to times when the polar regions of our planet were the centers of its life. Whether there really were such times may be doubted, yet there can be no doubt that those regions once supported high forms of vegetation and animal life, such as cannot now flourish within a thousand miles of either pole.

Did that life spread equatorward from both poles? Were there once "land bridges" connecting the Antarctic Circle with the great continents which now reach out their apparently broken arms toward it? And did living forms in both kingdoms of life—animal and vegetable—traverse those "bridges," and establish their lines in lower latitudes, where now they survive, saved from the glacial grave that swallowed their forebears near the Southern Pole?

And turning to the opposite end of the earth's axis, did other "fauna" and "flora," existing in some ancient era of warm airs and fertile soil within the Arctic Circle, flee down the meridional axes of America and the continents of the old World, when a great "ice age" dropped upon the poles? There are legends which seem to point to some such tremendous crisis in the history of the living world—but science is non-plussed by the problem thus presented.

Neither geology nor astronomy has found a satisfactory solution of the enigma of ancient life flourishing (as it evidently did), around and perhaps far within, the polar circles. The laws of mechanics emphatically reject the suggestion of so great a change in the position of the earth's axis as would be required to make the polar regions warm and habitable.

Possibly the best suggested solution of the mystery is that which rests upon the assumption of a great alteration in the composition of the earth's atmosphere, or a decrease in the intensity of the solar heat, resulting in a disastrous lowering of the mean surface temperature of the earth.

If that temperature was ever much greater than it is now it may be inferred that the polar regions and upper parts of the temperate zones were the only parts of the earth suited for the maintenance of life, since the tropics and the equator would be oppressed with unbearable heat. But such theories are not without serious difficulties.

There is one outstanding peculiarity about the earth's poles, the explanation of which might throw much light upon its ancient history. This is the remarkable contrast between the massive uplift that constitutes the Antarctic continent, and the deep sea-bed that covers the center of the Arctic region.

The South Pole lies in the midst of a vast plateau, whose mean elevation above sea-level may be as great as, or greater than, that of any of the other continents. On the other hand the north pole is sunk in the midst of a sea perhaps two miles or more in depth, and covered over with a floating and more or less broken roof of ice.

But, to increase the perplexity of the contrast, at one side of the great Arctic basin rises the huge plateau of Greenland, deeply buried under ice, it is true, yet evidently consisting mainly of an elevated rocky mass, some of whose points rise out of the eternal snow in the form of ragged peaks. On nearly all sides, except where the Arctic Ocean opens widely into the Atlantic, the north polar region is encircled with a rim of land. But, turning to the South Pole we find that the lofty continent on which it rests, is encircled completely by a ring of deep ocean water, with shallow places, however, which have led to the idea of former "land bridges." If the story of those "bridges" can ever be uncovered it may add an unexpected chapter to the earliest history of life on this planet.

By J. J. MUNDY

When Censure Is Harsh

YOU know you need criticism in your work, so you seek it.

To whom do you go for advice?

Do you ask those who know less about the matter than you do?

Or do you go to one who maintains a high standard in your line and whom you know to be fearless in expressing his or her opinion?

Do you shrink from adverse criticism?

Do you intend to get what you want, that is—compliments—or do you intend to get what you need, a knowledge of your shortcomings?

You are rather sensitive—harsh criticism hurts deeply.

It is a surgeon's knife to you, to have a blunt expression of distaste or disapproval, from your associates in business.

And yet you are falling down.

You sense it and cannot get at the reason.

Then put your pride away; find the one whom you know to be the most critical and hard to please, and get at the heart of your failure.

Don't resent an opinion expressed against you till you have thought it over carefully, to see if it can help you.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELS

To Marta, at Fifteen

FIFTEEN today? Ah, golden age,
More fair than you can guess,
With life a scarcely-opened page
Inscribed with loveliness!

No dawn but glows with pledges bright,
No dusk but it will bear
Across the shadowed arch of night
A starry promise there.

Your world is all with joys alight
And dreams' gay castles rise
While still new charms of sound, of sight
Delight your ears, your eyes.

Would I could choose for you today
This sun-bright land through which you stray,
To keep this fairy scene,
Always to be fifteen.

Tales that are Told

Youthful Strategy

"CRASH!" The window splintered under the impact of the hard-kicked ball.

The small boy who had kicked the ball regarded his handiwork with round eyes. Finally he decided to own up about it.

"I'm very sorry," he said to the occupant of the house, "but I've broken your scullery window. I'll fetch my father along to mend it."

A man came round shortly after and put in a new pane.

"That'll be two-and-six," he said.

"But," protested the other, "the boy said you were his father."

"And he told me you were his mother," was the disconcerting reply.

Not Far Enough

A STEEPLEJACK who was working almost at the summit of a very high factory chimney, slipped and fell.

Fortunately, he alighted on some bales of cotton-wool, and though dazed, he was unhurt.

The factory manager, who had been summoned to the scene, offered the injured man a glass of water.

"Drink this," he said. "It'll make a new man of you!"

The steeplejack looked at the water and then rolled his eyes up to the chimney where he had been working.

"H'm," he grunted, "I should like to know how far a man 'as got to fall afore he gets something stronger than water!"

A New Method

TWO men in the club were trying to read each other's thoughts, much to the amusement of several other members.

"What was I thinking about then?" asked the first man.

"Well," said the other, with an air of complete assurance, "you thought, Arthur, that if I were to ask you to lend me a fiver till the first of next month, you'd say you couldn't do it. Now, is that right?"

"No," declared the first man; "that's wrong."

"Really?" said his friend breezily. "Then you can let me have the money?"

But he was wrong again!

Generosity Personified

A MAN applied at a foundry for a job and was interviewed by the works overseer.

"What have you done before?" was one of the first questions put to the applicant.

"I was a milkman," he returned.

"And what wages did you get?"

"They used to pay me twenty-five shillings a week and me milk," answered the applicant hopefully.

The overseer reflected for a minute or two.

"Right-ho," he said. "You might be useful. Come along in and we'll give you thirty bob a week an' wean you into the bargain."—London Answers.

His Reason

TWO neighbors looked over the dividing fence and inspected what lay beyond.

"What on earth made you get such an enormous kennel for that tiny dog of yours?" asked the clean-shaven man.

The other turned about and inspected his dog's kennel. Then he swung round and faced his questioner, an artful smile hovering round his mouth.

"Well, between you and me and the gatepost," he began, "it's because I sometimes come home late and my wife locks the door!"

Dance—Stay Young!

OF COURSE Henry Ford likes to dance. That is one of the reasons why he is young.

Rhythm is life. The rhythm of sound is music; the rhythm of words is poetry, the rhythm of motion is dance.

Keep close to them, for in so doing, you keep close to the heart of things.

The world revolves in rhythmical cycles, the four seasons, the successive years. All cosmic life is one grand dance to the music of the spheres.

Henry Ford has learned something besides how to put the world on wheels.

New York Day by Day
by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 14.—Nothing is so stimulating as a prize fight crowd, even if one doesn't care for the slugging match. There is a red-corpuscled ruggedness and warmth in the smell of heavy black cigars as well as the aromatic overtone of human sweat.

Lighter artificialities of civilization vanish. You feel it the instant you join the line toiling its way into Madison Square Garden. You are no longer shy in referring to viscera as guts. You forget your parlor manners, use a toothpick and spit on the floor.

A stomach that bolts easily, seems to clamor for raw meat sandwiches sprinkled with onion or the succulent weiner encased between thick buns, gooey with mustard. You spurn pop and gingerale through straws and swig it straight from the bottle. Glug glug. lug!

You fall into easy familiarity with some sweatered plug ugly with a twisted nose and undershot jaw who clings to the prison habit of talking out of the side of his mouth. He is your buddy for the evening. There is an inward glow akin to that of back-lapping with a policeman.

Even a pale young ribbon clerk feels a troglodyte. He will talk back and perhaps invite you outside if jostled. It is all the irresistible tug of the primitive, the warp and woof of a strain in all that we do not quite understand.

We are not shocked at flying epithets. Knock the bum cold. . . . What a lousy palooka you turned out to be. . . . Stand up and take your socking, you yellow soandso. . . . Whadda you care about a handful of teeth? . . . Unhinge his neck. . . . Mush his mug. . . . Flatten his button. . . .

Most of us with emotions a little finer than those of the stable hostler come away from such fiestas with a slight feeling of degradation. Yet for the moment we have been gripped and animated by the sheer animal vigor that sweeps the crowd. A great place—the Garden. There you believe Dr. Durant and all the boys who are a little snooty about our civilization may be right.

No amusement offers such picturesque figures as the prize ring. Here is virile stuff from the lumber camps, the city slums, the wheat fields and sometimes the brothels. Their contact has been chiefly with life in the raw. They get theirs with the punch. A pull doesn't mean a thing. And infinitesimally few get anywhere, but in no calling is there such boundless enthusiasm.

* * *

In a certain hotel there is nightly at a table for two—a lone woman diner swathed in black. Across from her is a small vase with a single red rose fresh daily. For 20 years, the head waiter tells me, she and her husband occupied the table. Three years ago he was killed in an auto accident. I suppose some might call it mawkish, but to me it was rather splendid.

* * *

A short story writer just called on the telephone, perplexed about a name for a jovial young man who was a character in his yarn. He had thought of Tom, but didn't like it. I suggested Ted.

* * *

I have never known a Ted who was not light-hearted and rather inclined to greet life with a laugh. But a Theodore somehow seems to suggest that starchy name.

* * *

Those of us who used to raid a lumber yard to fashion a pair of stilts would be interested in the stilts now sold. They are highly polished wood with rubber tips, adjustable foot racks and rubberized grips for the hand. They sell for $10 a pair.

* * *

The proprietor of a no-tip cafe writes me he has been operating six months and not a waiter has accepted a tip. Another one I always enjoyed is about the theatrical producers who insist you can get good seats at the box office.

Forest Week
By DR. FRANK CRANE

Forest Week is the week of April twenty-second.

It ought to be generally observed by tree planting by all schools and other organizations.

We do a great many things as organized bodies which, perhaps, may be questioned. Some there are who do not always agree with our conclusions. But there is hardly any dispute as to the value of trees.

Trees are the best friends of man and all who are interested in the future welfare of the race should do their part in tree planting.

Two foresters of an experiment station of the United States Department of Agriculture say:

"A proposal that the United States abandon one-sixth of her territory to foreign powers would be met with instant disapproval. Yet practically as great a loss in national wealth and income would be suffered if all the privately owned land of the country were allowed gradually to lapse into an idle, unproductive condition, the actual condition of many thousand square miles today, and if the forests of other countries were called upon to furnish the wood that American forests have hitherto produced."

Planting a tree may be a more indirect but hardly less effective way of showing one's patriotism than going to war. Forests mean much to the prosperity of a country and hence to its defense.

The report on the Mississippi flood says that while it does not minimize the efforts of engineers to build reservoirs and levees as flood preventive measures, yet the first thing of importance toward flood control is the conservation of the forests in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Idle waste land on farms should be used for the planting of trees. Over two million acres of forest protection lands already approved by the National Forest Reservation Commission should be increased by almost six million acres more.

Educational programs for tree planting are now available and so is the Forestry Primer of the American Tree Association. Any school teacher can have a copy by writing for it.

The Forestry Primer in circulation has gone beyond any anticipation since the first 100,000 in 1926 were published.

Public opinion should be so influenced through our schools and through our press that the people will recognize the importance of trees. We should escape the fate of comparatively treeless China.

OH, THESE WOMEN!
By LEOLA ALLARD.

LONDON society girls are excited because the Prince of Wales remarked: "You can't get far without the women." Immediately all the girls sat up and powdered their noses.

But the Prince doesn't want to go far. He doesn't even enjoy being where he is. And if he moved up it would mean casualties in the royal family, so there is little the ladies can do to help him.

What an enormous amount of perfectly good nose powder has already been wasted on that handsome young somebody!

In speaking of a prince and princess visiting in America, the remark was made: "She is a very bright woman, but he—well, he is JUST a prince!" Which should provoke many a disgusted "huh!" from young women who think THAT certainly is enough.

The Duke De Nemours must be more than "just a duke!" Dispatches say that if he couldn't get the consent of his uncle, the King of Belgium, to marry the American, Peggy Watson, he threatened to go to work and support his wife the best he could. The thought was horrible and the King consented.

Fancy an American boy saying, "If you don't consent, I'll marry the woman and go to work!"

Mrs. Beatrice Ensor, educator, says that co-education makes for successful marriage, that the girls know more about men.

It isn't what you know about men that makes you fall in love with the right ones. I know a woman who was "co-educational" and had four brothers and what a lemon-gatherer she was. The just got her third divorce.

It is the kindliest women who whiff orange blossoms every time they find a soul in distress.

The girls out in Santa Barbara are having a great thrill high-flying with Colonel Lindberg. Only it doesn't mean what it usually does. The Colonel has the peculiar gift of being able to keep both feet on the ground and still be up in the air.

Elsie Swanson, sewing instructor in high schools, says girls can dress on $150 a year. She listed the articles which were certainly more clothes than any modern girl would want to wear.

The tendency of the times controls the prices, and a chiffon whatnot costs as much as a dozen underthings of other days.

Mighty few working girls who don't have the dollar-down men shadowing them. Fact is, they joke about it, till they get caught, and—then they find another dollar place.

Otherwise what is life to a girl with a green chiffon soul with a pink ribbon through it? I ask you.

Gilda has offered to shimmy for Dr. William Montgomery McGovern, curator at the Field Museum, right there in the museum before the diplodocus and other whatnots. This because the good doctor told Gilda all about Tibet.

Gilda always gets her information first. After she dances sometimes they forget.
